—An industry of which but few people are aware is carried on by a Mt. Auburn man, who supplies goldfish for the Boston market. A considerable business has sprung from the fad of keeping a bowl of goldfish, and this man makes a neat income in supplying the demand. Last year he captured 7000 of the little beauties, all of which he sold in Boston. The goldfish are found in a pond on Concord street, Mt. Auburn. The dealer leases the pond and devotes much of his time to his little friends. Most of the goldfish he catches are quite small, measuring not over three friends. Most of the goldfish he catches are quite small, measuring not over three inches in length, but he has caught a few which tipped the scales at a pound and measured fully six inches. Goldfish of this size are not considered as choice as the smaller variety, and they do not find as ready a market. The fish are captured in a scoop net, and great care has to be exercised in order that they may not be injured.—Boston Herald.

At 7.30 o'cloka hearing was opened on the widening dearning and on the widening, deepening and straightening of Cheesecake brook from Watertown street to the Charles River. Robert H. Hill was present, but after understanding the question said he should not object to having the brook itself improved.

No other persons appearing, a hearing on the construction of a boulevard on each side of Cheesecake brook was

Robert H. Hili opposed the construc-tion of a street along the line of the brook as being of damage to his property. He said the proposed street would take 70 to 75 feet of land which he had been at an expense to fill in. He was about to sell a lot there but this street would absorb that lot wholly and spoil the next one. He thought it would be an injury to the city to run a street along the brook.

The mayor remarked that if he was

The mayor remarked that if he was benefitted he could pay the city for the improvement or he could claim damages if his property was injured. Mr. Hill was undecided as to what he should charge the city of Newton for damages.

$22,400 FOR WATER BOARD.

Alderman Harbach offered an order appropriating $10,000 for the completion of the culvert and filter basin for the water board.

In explanation he said the expense so far incurred by the recent changes in the water works amounted to $200,087, and this order would seem an apparent overdraw of $10,000, but there is now $6000 worth of material to sell, and when the work is completed there will be $5000 worth of machinery and tools. The actual excess of the original appropriation would only be about $5000, which he considered as not unreasonable on a $200,000 contract.

The order was then passed.
Alderman Harbach offered an order which was adopted, appropriating $3000 for new flooring in the engine and boiler rooms at the pumping station.

The invitation was accepted.

Alderman Harbach resented an order appropriating $9400 for the purchase of $84,508 feet of land, corner of Winchester and Cook streets, Newton Highlands, for the use of the water board.

The alderman from Ward Six said it had seemed for some time, desirable to secure a place on the south side of the city for the storage of pipe etc., and avoid carting it from the north section of the city.

The land suggested was near both the city.

The land suggested was near both the B. & A. and the N. Y. & N. E. roads and a spurr track could easily be run to the yard.

Alderman Hyde spoke in favor of the order. It was adopted.

Alderman Hyde reported for the compilities on licenses granting the petitions of Geo. W. Barton for building on Cherry street, D. F. Inglis for private stable, Cottage place, Henry C. Preble for store on Beacon street and H. C. Preble for license as innholder, W. D. Shaughnessy for store on Washington near Court street.

CHEESECAKE BOULEVARD.

Alderman Coffio presented an order for the laying out and grading of a highway on each side of Cheesecake brook to be laid out as shown on plans of the city engineer. The order was adopted.

Alderman Ceffin then offered an order rescinding a previous order relative to the work being held in abeyance and authorizing the expenditure of $5,000 for the construction of the highways as above, the order passing unanimously.

The board then assembled in executive session.

BOSTON THEATRE—Denman Thompson will come to the Boston Theatre on Labor day to begin a season of eight weeks. "The Old Homestead" will be played, with Mr. Thompson in his own role of Uncle Joshua, supported by his entire original company. The beautiful scenes and realistic features which made the pastoral play so attractive to New England people will be reproduced on the most capacious and best furnished stage in America. Seats for the entire engagement are now on sale at the box office.

Green Order House—Far beyond the stage in America. Seats for the entire engagement are now on sale at the box office.

Grand Opera House—Far beyond the expectation of even the management of the Grand Opera House has the innovation of combining legitimate drama with high-class specialty entertainments proven successful. It is the purpose of Messrs, Proctor & Co. to secure for each week's attraction the best standard drama possible and to make the specialty performance a strong feature of the entertainment. Carmencita is now playing the third week of her engagement and her admirers have increased hundreds at every performance. No one can tire of her graceful dancing and her costumes are greatly admired. Next week the sensational American comedy-drama, "Struggle for Life," which had such a remarkable run last season, will be presented. Mr. Edward Hanford, an actor whose rise in the profession has been both rapid and deserved, will play leading role. He will be strongly supported. Scenicly the play is classed as one of the finest ever executed. A surprise in the specialty part awaits all who visit the Opera house next week. Mile. Nada Reyval comes from Les Ambassadeurs, Paris. She is called the "Queen of Electricity" and will make her first appearance in Boston next Monday night. She not only has an excellent volce, but her dances are pronounced unusually clever. Her chief claim to attention, however, lies in the daring nature and startling effect of her electrical act. Capitola Forrest and other entertainers will contribute an entertainement deserving the patronage of crowded houses. Curtain rises at '7.30 every evening,' and at 1.30 Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

PARK THEATRE—Newly painted, recarpeted and freshened and brightened in every way, and with its stage facilities greatly improved, the Park Theatre, will open for another year on Saturday, Sept. 3rd, when will be presented "1402" by Rice's Surprise Party. Former presentations of the exceedingly clever and merry extravaganza which Messrs. R. A. Bargett and Carl Pflueger wrote for the drainatically and musically inclined members of the First Corps of Cadets were undeubtedly very enjvyable, but those productions failed to fully present the merits of the piece. This will be Mr. Rice's first theatrical production since his return from Australia. No manager in America has ever surpassed Mr. Rice in the splendid and beautiful presentation of extravaganza, and, as he has given "1402" his personal attention, theatregoers may expect gorgeous stage pictures, beautiful women in elab rate and valuable costumes, fine scenic effects and at thoroughly artistic and satisfactory ensemble. Mr. Pflueger has written much new music, and in this work he has had for his able collaborate, Mr. Rice and Mr. John J. Branam. The latter will direct the large orchestra engaged for the production. The cast promises to be one of the best that has ever been seen here in an extravaganz; production. Sig. Perugini has returned to the stage after a four years' absence, and on Saturday night will make his first appearance in comic opera. His remarkably handsome presence and splendid tenor voice will surely enable him to make his impersonation of Columbus a memorable one. A Spanish ballet, headed by Isabel Florence, will be in feature, and the Casino girls will outdo the originals in beauty of face, form and costume. "1402" is announced for a long run at the Park.

Early Methods of Curing Skins.

Early Methods of Curing Skins.

The original process of curing skins was probably the simple one of cleaning and drying them. Removal of the hair by maceration in water seems to have been common among the very early tribes, and one writer has suggested that the idea was obtained from the natural process of depilation. They must certainly have been familiar with it in the case of drowned animals, where it in the case of drowned animals, where it in the case of drowned animals, where maceration can be plainly observed. Following this, smoke, sour milk, oil, and the brains of the animals themselves were found efficacious. Many of these primitive methods are employed at the present time, thus bringing into novel conjunction the days of the roving Mas-sagetæ and these of the thrifty Ameri-can.—George A. Duel of Two Girls.

At Charkoff, Russia, two girls who were friends fell in love with the same young man. He was slow to make his selection between them. They agreed that either could win him if delivered of the baneful competition of the other. They decided upon a duel by drawing lots. On the day following one of the young ladies was found dead in her room. She had poisoned herself with phosphorus. But her friend is broken down with sorrow and remorse. It is more than likely that she will not live to enjoy the fruits of her victory.—Paris to enjoy the fruits of her victory.—Paris

THE MORNING OF THE DISCOVERY

Immortal Morn, all hall, That saw Columbus sail By Faith alone. The skies before him bowed, Back rolled the ocean proud, And every lifting cloud With glory shone!

Fair Science then was born On that celestial morn, Faith dared the sea; Triumphant o'er her foës, Then Truth immortal rose New Heavens to disclose And Earth to free!

Strong Freedom then came forth
To liberate the earth
And crown the right,
So walked the pilot bold
Upon the sen of gold,
And darkness backward rolled
And there was light!

Sweep, sweep across the seas, Ye rolling jubilees, Grand chorals raise; The world adoring stands, And with uplifted hands Offers from all the lands To God its praise!

Ye hosts of Faith, sing on;
The victories ye have won Shall Time increase,
And like the choral strain
That fell on Bethlehem's plain, Inspire the perfect reign Of Love and Peace!

PREPARE FOR OCT. 21.

The outline of what is proposed for Columbus Day is enough to indicate two

First—That the official programme will be so simple and can be so easily arranged that no school need wait till it is published before beginning its own preparations for the celebration.

Second—That the object of the national public school celebration of Columbus Day needs the cordial concerns.

tional public school celebration of Columbus Day needs the cordial co-operation of the citizens generally in each locality in order to be fully realized.

The executive committee has also sent us a few suggestions of a practical nature which will be of advantage to teachers and all other friends of the celebration just at present. They are as follows:

First—A strong local committee should be appointed at once. It would be well be appointed at once. It would be well to include in this committee not only to include in this committee not only the leading school officials, but also editors of the local press, army veterans and leading citizens who are known to favor the celebration by the schools. Only such as are likely to give earnest support to the work should be appointed. Second—The postoffice address of the chairman of this local committee should be sent to the office of the chairman.

be sent to the office of the chairman of the national executive committee (Fran-cis Bellamy, Youth's Companion office, Boston, Mass.), in order that the chairman of the local committee may receive the official programme and other communication

Third-This committee should first se munications.

Third—This committee should first see that each school is provided with a flag, the salute to which will be the first feature of the official programme. They should also advise with each principal as to the best way in which the celebration can be carried on in his school house, arranging for speakers and suggesting exercises additional to the official programme.

Fourth—This committee should also arrange that the citizens' celebration be made to occur in the afternoon, and should see that the desired prominence is given to the free school idea in public ceremonies. Where no arrangements have yet been made for a citizens' celebration this committee might themselves take the initiative, and organize the afternoon demonstrations as well as the programmences. the afternoon demonstrations as well as the morning observances in the school houses.

Fifth—The greater publicity that is given to this committee, both in its formation and in its work, the better. Accordingly, the attention of the people generally must be gained and their interest secured. Let the people be freely invited to give suggestions and to send communications to the local press as to the best conduct of the celebration. the best conduct of the celebration.

Sixth—The committee should see that the editors of the local papers are inter-ested in the movement, and the people informed through the columns of these papers of the celebration and what is being done to make it a success.

In one word, this 400th anniversary of America belongs to all the people. The public schools take the lead because they are the organization closest to the peo-ple, most characteristic of the people and fullest of hope for the people.

At a recent meeting in Albany a member of the board made a comprehensive statement of the reasons why the change of date to Oct. 21 should be made, and said in closing: "I would also like to state, in this connection, one sentimental reason which I am sure will sentimental reason which I am sure will show a very interesting set of coinci-dences. Columbus left the Old World on a Friday, left the New World on a Friday, returned to the Old World on a Friday, and the 21st of October also falls on a Friday; so we see that for us, at least, Friday is not an unlucky day."

Lionized the Wrong Englishman.
The Hotel Del Monte at Monterey,
Cal., is stirred up over a ludicrous mistake by which a prosaic English merchant was lionized as Robert Buchanan, poet and dramatist

The Briton arrived at the hotel three days ago with two friends. He registered in a fine, literary hand, and as he tered in a line, iterary hand, and as he bore a strong resemblance to the author several ladies present declared he must be the author of "The Shadow of the Sword." So several ladies desired him to write his autograph in their albums with some poetical sentiment. He re-ceived all their flattery complacently, but grinding out poetry for them kept but grinding out poetry for them kept him up all night and the result was omething to shake confidence in their

The next day he was the center of an admiring group. His companions became suspicious and asked the hotel came suspicious and asked the hotel clerk why so much attention was paid their friend. They were amazed when they learned the true reason, because they declared their friend had never heard of Buchanan. They broke the news gently to him, but his conceit received a great shock. All three packed and left before disclosures came.—Cor. Chicago Herald.

The Wilde Boys' First Appearance.

It is not generally known that the brothers Oscar and Willie Wilde first came to public notice on the occasion of the centenary of Thomas Moore at Dublin about fifteen years ago. It was proposed to perform an ode specially written for the occasion by Mr. S. N. Elrington and composed by the well known Irish composer, John William Glover. The Wilde brothers, assisted by Mr. Sexton, the member for West Belfast, and then on the staff of The Nation, led a furious and successful opposition against the official adoption of the Nolan-Glover ode.

It may be only a coincidence that the

In Chains in India.

The practice of binding religious persons still exists in India, as is evidenced by the following from the Allahabad (India) Pioneer. The incident occurred recently at Meerut: A fakir, wearing nearly five maunds (400 pounds) of iron chains and bands on him, recently left the cantonment station. The railleft the cantonment station. The rail-way authorities deslined to allow him to travel as a passenger, but sent him as goods by weight, in spite of his argu-ment that native women were never charged for their anklets and bangles. The iron absorbed the heat so much that the man had to be incessantly sprinkled with water. He is an old man and nearly died at the station.

Luck in Factographing Lightning.

One of the most remarkable and successful photographs of lightning ever known was made by Mr. Rusk, at Haines Falls, in the Catskills, during the electrical display the other night. The lateral zigzag streaks of fire against the massive slope of Mount Lincoln were instantaneously caught in the exposure and are plainly and sharply shown in the print, which also shows bursting bolts of lightning in the upper atmosphere, where the vivid illumination casts wonderful shadows upon the surrounding mountains. The print is an interesting study of atmospheric electricity.—Albany Journal. Luck in Photographing Lightning.

HOW A PROVINCIAL TRIP WAS ENLIVENED BY THE WORKINGS OF MCKINLEYISM.

The remarkable thing about the failure of the English plush manufacturing concerns of Sir Titus Salt, Sons & Co., "due to the McKinley bill," over which the organs of that polley are crowing, says the Springfield Republican, is that the branch of the same concern established at Bridgeport, Ct., soon after the law was passed, has also been knocked out. It was transplanted to catch a part of the McKinley-created American plush prosperity, but according to the New York Tribune, it found the demand so light that its force was cut down from 500 to 500 men and finally it had to stop altogether. Now the plush machinery is being replaced by machinery to make velvets or something else.

The American Economist claims that wages have advanced under the Mc-Kinley bill, and that the tariff is solely for the protection of the American working man. It then goes on to quote the Senate report that wages advanced three fourths of 1 per cent, which means that a man getting one dollar a day before the bill was passed, now gets three fourths of one per cent. of one dollar more than he did before, what a tremendous benefit this is to the workingman!

The Columbus Day School Celebration. The official program, by making certain of the day's exercises uniform in all locali-ties, will give the national observance an important unity. Its leading provisions are as follows:

ties, will give the national observance an important unity. Its leading provisions are as follows:

The schools everywhere are to assemble at the usual hour on the morning of Oct. 21. A detail of veterans is expected to arrive soon after, and all will repair to the yard. The exercises will begin with reading of the proclamation. Then the flag will be raised by the veterans, and saluted by all the pupils in a brief exercise, terminating in the song "My Country, 'tis of Thee.' After divine acknowledgements, the Song of Columbus Day, an original hymn for the occasion and set to the old tune of "Lyons" will be sung by all. Following, will be a declamation of the Address of Columbus Day, and a reading of the Ode for Columbus Day, and a reading of the Ode for Columbus Day, buth original productions for the occasion.

Opportunity will then be given for whatever additional features local enterprise may provide; and the morning observance will end with short addresses by citizens, and national songs.

For the afternoon a Public School Review is suggested; or, if there is a civic parade, it is urged that the schools, escorted by the veterans, be made the prominent feature. In the mass meeting of citizens, with which many places will conclude the day, it is proposed that among the speeches ample recognition be given to the American system of free, universal education as a source of American progress and the hope of the future.

Oxfober 21st is less than two months distant, but all of this time may be used to excellent advantage in preparing for the celebration. In undertakings of this character unavoidable delays are apt to occur. The schools which begin immediately on the work which must be done to make the celebration a credit to themselves and their town, will escape the annoying situations likely to arise if everything is left until the eleventh hour.

Newton is so rapidly being built up, and land is all the time rising in value so that it is highly important that action in such matters should not be deferred. As all parks attract the best class of residents to their vicinity for the sake of the wider views and freer air, the city would also find this a profitable investment.

CURIOUS CAMPAIGNING.

THE Boston Journal of last Tuesday tried to convey the impression that the Hon. C. A. Campbell was still a candi-date and was not in favor of Mr. J. R. Leeson for Councillor, and published an extract from a letter written by him as follows: 'I have not withdrawn from the Councillor nomination in favor of anybody and I do not intend to do so, as I feel that I have no right to assume so much to myself." It might be interesting to know why the Journal did not quote the whole of the letter, instead of quoting one sentence which standing alone would give the reader a wrong im-

Mr. Campbell is a modest man and did not think he had influence enough to turn the votes that would have been cast for him over to Mr. Leeson, although he had withdrawn from the race and was himself in favor of Mr. Leeson.

In an interview with Mr. E. T. Col-burn he said: "I met Mr. Leeson at lunch the day I decided to withdraw from the contest for Councillor, and stated to him that I was out of the fight and hoped he would be successful, as I believed him to be eminently fitted for the place.'

It would have been very easy for the Boston Journal to have printed the whole of the letter and presented the facts exactly as they stood, but either it did not care to do so, or it was furnished with only the extract which was used.

The friends of Mr. Leeson in Newton kind of electioneering by coming out in full numbers to attend the caucuses, and secure the appointment of delegates in

Now that Senator Dawes has declined reelection, the importance of care in the selection of representatives becomes more apparent. There are two men who are pulling all possible wires to secure that honorable position, Congressman Lodge and Speaker Bassett, and their influence will doubtless be felt in every representative contest. Speaker Barrett is said to be writing letters to all the old representatives who have been friendly to him, asking for their good offices, and so forth, and probably his rival is also doing something of the kind. Such a hustling over so high an office is rather unseemly, and the people should take the matter in their own hands and not let the office go to any unworthy candidate, no matter if he does ask for it with date, no matter if he does ask for it with great persistence. There are other men in the state who have not joined in any unseemly scramble, and who are also better fitted for the position, notably Messrs. Crapo and Long. If it depended solely on the judgement of the people some such man would be chosen. Be-

THE NEWTON GRAPHIC tween the two hustling candidates there does not seem to be a great deal of choice.

> CURIOUS that so little interest is taken in politics this year. Here the caucuses are called for next week, and with the exception of the Councillorship, there has been no talk of the other candidates. has been no talk of the other candidates. Newton is to choose two representatives to the General Court, who will have a chance to vote for United States Senator, but so far very little interest is taken in the matter. We hear that the South Side will probably unite on Alderman Hyde, unless Mr. Dwight Chester will accept another term, but no names have been mentioned for the representative from the North Side of the sity. The been mentioned for the representative from the North Side of the city. The candidates seem to be very modest this year, but possibly Representative Howard did so well that there is no desire for a change. It is expected that the Democrats will follow their usual policy in putting up only one candidate.

In view of reports which come to us from several cities in this district Hon. Alden Speare does not seem to be far out of the way in his prediction that Senator of the way in his prediction that Senator Gilman would not receive the nomination for Councillor, even if he got the unanimous vote of Newton, which he will be very far from doing. It would seem to be wise, therefore, to unite upon a man such as Mr. Leeson, who can be nominated, and who is favored by the most arounant men in the district. most prominent men in the district.

There are 118 tax-payers in Brookline who are assessed more than $1,000 on their property, which shows the strength of Brookline's claim to being considered the rich men's town.

EVERYBODY is asking where that petition is asking Mayor Hibbard to accept another term. They all want to sign it without distinction of ward or party.

THE Republican that stays away from the caucuses next week will have no right to growl, whoever is nominated.

-Two electric cars carrying the directors of the new road and friends came over the rails from Newtonville Tuesday evening, arriving at the Falls about 8 o'clock. From their entrance on High street until their departure some time later they were the recipients of a brilliant ovation. The citizens of this village had learned of the proposed trip and as the cars passed up. The penalty for failing to pay the tax is seven dollars or thirty days in jail, or both. The Stonington officer has adopted a peculiar method to facilitate justice. Every morning a carriage starts out; it is the courtroom on wheels. There are in it the grand juror, the constable and the dog officer and justice of the peace. The residents of Howrah have been finding lately that jackals are animals of anything but an attractive temper. of anything but an attractive temper. In some cases they have come right up to the bungalows in search of prey. A little girl, aged about five years, was playing in a veranda when a jackal suddenly rushed on her and was dragging her away when she was rescued. She was severely bitten. Three natives, while walking along the Kooroot road, were attacked by a jackal, which was only driven off after a stubborn fight, and a tale is told of two women, while standing near a tank, being attacked and bitten. So serious has the state of matters become that the public propose to submit a memorial to the district magistrate praying for the adoption of magistrate praying for the adoption of measures for the destruction of these pests.—Pioneer Mail.

An Adventure with Turtles.

A boy at Newark, N. J., found two snapping turtles on Sunday morning and started to carry them home. In crossing a garden he was met by the owner, who poured out a volley of broken English upon the lad. The boystood his ground bravely and returned vigorous language, but in doing so forgot all about the turtles and held one of vigorous language, but in doing so for-got all about the turtles and held one of them close to his bare leg. The turtle seized the lad by the left calf and held on with the tenacity of a bulldog. In writhing around the boy brought the other turtle in contact with his right leg, and he, too, took hold. The gardener for-got his anger and with the aid of his pruning kuife managed to liberate the pruning knife managed to liberate the turtles from their hold. The muscles of both calves were badly lacerated.—Phil-adelphia Ledger.

This is the time of perfumed breaths. A woman expends many a dollar on little capsules that the wily druggist has been at great pains to concoct, and she ever after breathes upon you a composition of delicate odors that makes one conjure up all the very good things to smell and eat that we have ever known. It is a most dainty ad whichever way you look at it, and one that cannot have one word said against it.

little more time on teeth and throat they would not need so many perfumery things to make them sweet; but that is neither here nor there, and as Lord Byron says a woman should be gotten up like a bouquet, let the girls revel in sweet smells, in perfumes and powders for the hair, for of course you know one's powder rubbed into the roots of the hair and then carefully brushed out again leaves a faint trace of violets on the locks that is simply entrancing, and in extracts and toilet waters for the dainty bodies, but we beg that the heavy odor of musk and patchouli be left out of the category, or else that the devotees of such stifling perfumes take pity on poor hucategory, or else that the devotees of such stifling perfumes take pity on poor hu-manity and religiously avoid crowded theaters or more closely packed street cars, where one grows positively faint by an overwhelming scent that drives every other thought or surrounding from the mind.—Philadelphia Times.

"A Great Climate." The Georgia weekly editors will resume business at the old stands this week, having returned from their westsume business at the oid stands this week, having returned from their western excursion. One of them relates an amusing incident of a buggy ride in Texas. A local committee was conducting a number of editors over several large and scientifically arranged farms. While the members of the committee were praising the soil and climate of Texas in extravagant terms, a sandstorm, accompanied by a first-class cyclone, lifted horses and buggies in the air, bearing all of them along in a cloud of sand at the rate of a mile a minute, While they were going it at this rate the spokesman of the committee muttered between gasps: "Lively times, gents. We don'b—have—this—often. Great—climate. Just—got—blowout—for—the—occasion!" Then, as they were all tumbled head over heels in a ditch, the committeeman shouted "Just hold your breath for a half hour and it'll be over. Great climate!"—Atlanta Constitution.

A Careless Counterfeiter. Once in awhile we hear of the suspender button going into the contribution box, but it has been reserved for a prominent Dextercitizen to appear in the guise of a bold, bad counterfeiter. His envelope Sunday contained a lead half dolvelope Sunday contained a lead half dollar, which was promptly returned to him. With that lack of precaution characteristic at times of the greatest criminal he placed his name on the envelope inclosing his contribution. He will keep right on making leaden shiners probably, but if he attempts to pass another single one he will get his name into the paper, and this will probably frighten him out of the business if anything in this wide world can.—Dexter (Me.) The Raisin Industry in Victoria.

The raisin industry is being gradually developed in Victoria, and promises shortly to be sufficient to supply the requirements of the colony. So says Mr. J. Knight, who writes on the subject in the new Bulletin of the Victoria Department of Agriculture, Extensive the new Bulletin of the Victoria Department of Agriculture. Extensive planting, he says, is going on in various parts of the colony, from the extreme west of Mildura along to the east as far as Wangaratta, the largest plantation being in the well known Goulburn valley. In this locality not only has the manufacture of raisins received attention during the last six years, but the products of the currant vine also are ow being placed on the market.

NEWTON POSTAL MATTERS.

EXTENSION OF THE FREE DELIVERY SYSTEM SOON TO COME.

A Newton gentleman of some promi nence in Republican circles, who has been visiting in Washington, says the Boston Herald, has secured some tips regarding contemplated improvements in the postal service in the first named

In a letter to a resident he says that the postoffice at West Newton is to be immediately placed under the second-class classification, and further improved be immediately placed under the secondclass classification, and further improved by the establishment of free delivery.

The free delivery service, he says, will be made general. It is to be extended from Postmaster Morgan's office, and sub-stations are to be located at West Newton and Newton Highlands.
This information does not come entirely in the light of news, as rumors of such a change have been rumbling around for the past few months. It has been general understood that Newton was soon to enjoy the privileges and benefit of a general free delivery system, but no positive information as to the method of its introduction has been available.
Some of the prominent residents of West Newton recently sent a petition to the postoffice department, requesting the establishment of a free delivery office in that place. This was to be maintained independently and to have no connection whatever with Postmaster Morgan's office, which provides for Wards 1 and 7, and portions of Wards 2 and 6.
There has been a strong undercurrent of opposition to the extension of free delivery from Postmaster Morgan's office, because it means the abolishing of two second-class and several lesser postoffices, and the sacrificing of several official heads. If the change is made, superintendents will be appointed to assume charge of the sub-stations, and it seems probable that party pressure will be brought to bear in filling those posiington.

In the meantime, those who have in some manner secured hints from department officials, calmly assert that when the change comes the service will be extended from the present free delivery office, and that it is preposterous to assume that the government will consent to the establishing of two independent free delivery offices in a city of Newton's territory and population.

A Bruggest Says.

Marvin C. Brown, Druggist, Meredith Village, N. H., says: I have sold your Sulphur Bitters for years, and, contrary to most medicines, I never sold a bottle to any one who said it did not help them. They cured me of those terrible sick headaches when every other remedy failed.

Yes, that was so. For years I suffered severely with scrofuls; sores broke out all over my body, and I am unable to tell one half that I suffered. I was not able to obtain relief until I used Sulphur Bitters, which completely cured me.—C. B. Dale, 17 Allston street, Boston.

that body voted to take under consideration.

It was decided to call another special meeting for Wednesday evening, Aug. 31 at which time the board would probably take some definite action on the proposition submitted by the owners, tending toward the abatement of the Boyd pond nuisance.

The question of the next field day was left to the decision of the Mayor.

No official communication had been received from the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission in reference to emptying the contents of cesspools into the sewer, and a vote was therefore taken instructing the agent to notify W. H. Mague to have one tank wagon properly fitted with connections, under the direction of the city engineer, to experiment on emptying cesspool contents into the sewer.

Permission was received from the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission for the Nonantum Worsted Company to enter their drainage into the Metropolitan sewer, direct, as a portion of the city sewage.

NEW ELECTRIC ROAD.

LINE THROUGH CENTRE OF NEWTON PRO

Newton is soon to enjoy the benefits of another electric street railway, which is to run cross-town practically through the geographical centre of the city.

geographical centre of the city. Residents of Newton Highlands are the projectors and principal stock takers.

It is proposed to run the new road between Needham and Brookline, passing through Highlandville, Newton Highlands and Newton Centre, by way of the proposed new boulevard. In Brookline the road will terminate at some point available for easy connection with the West End system.

The projectors desire to build the road with a view to rapid transit, running through as few streets as possible, and carrying out the Brookline boulevard system as far as it is practicable.

The general details have not been perfected, but those who have subscribed toward the capital stock assert that the road is a sure go, and that it will prove paying property, providing means of travel through a section at present poorly accommodated.

Rights of Oak Hill.

the Editor of the Newton Graphic: Have the citizens of Oak Hill district no rights but to be taxed? We are not given police service though thefts and burglaries frequently occur. We are not granted street lights though there are many abrupt and dark corners to turn granted street lights though there are many abrupt and dark corners to turn after night-fall, and now to cap the climax on all past neglect, the School Board have gravely decided to close our school at Oak Hill and compel our children of tender years to meet a barge on the premises of the closed school, house, and ride through all kinds of weather, one and a half miles to school thus endangering health and life.

Our little ones cannot reach the point where the barge meets them without getting their feet more or less damp.

And then these little ones must carry their dinner and remain during recess away from their home without the supervision of parent or teacher.

And all this has been done against a remonstrance from all the people of this locality. It would seem that a part of the city, which had paid into the city treasury a great many thousand dollars annually, and had not received back more than fifteen hundred or two thousand in any one year for street repair, school and all other purposes until last year, when an appropriation was made to lay a water main in part of said locality, it would seem that their citizeus ought to have a voice in the affairs that specially and specifically concern them.

Several new families have moved into this district since last spring, and if all the children who properly belong to this district should go, there would be 25 or 30.

We appeal to the good sense and humanity of the citizens of Newton, and ask for the sake of our little children whose lives and health are dear to us, that this hardship and inhumanity contemplated by the School Board be stopped.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES.

Mrs. Deland begins her new story in this number. It is entitled, "The Story of a Child," but it is an account of child life which is intended for older readers. It is intended to present the silent, unexpressed side of an imaginative child's character in a way at once effective, sympathetic and delichtful. Mrs. Deland has great power of subjective treatment in a healthy form, and her new story will not at all take up the theological questions which have been presented in her former fixtions. Dr. Hale, in "A New England Boyhood," describes a life at his early home. The father of Dr. Hale was not a common man, and few men in Boston of his day lad such opportunities as were placed within his reach in that home. Without at all entrenching upon the privacy of his life, he gives a delightful sketch of this part of his boyhood. Mr. William Henry Bishop presents the third part of his experiences, entitled "An American at Home in Europe." Miss Vida Scuddar also completes her critical essay on "The Promethus Unbound of Shelley." Mr. Crawford is more than half through with his story, entitled "Don Orsino." Mr. Scudder contributes an interesting article, entitled poem intended for Dr. Holmes' birthday on the 29th of August. "Why Young Men Defer Marriage" is the subject of an interesting article on this truth-asserting topic, by John Lambert Payne, in the September Ladies' Home Journal. Mr. Payne's paper is statistical and treats this momentous matter from every standpoint. The domestic problem concerning the relations existing "Between Mistress and Maid" is intelligently discussed by Harriet Prescott Spofford, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, Helen S. The article deals with the history of old Deerfield, and the traditions pertaining to the different families and houses, and gives an account of its interests, artistic and otherwise of today. Rev. M. J. Savage has another chapter of wonderful ghost stories in the September Arena which are exceedingly interesting, to say the least. Ibn Ishak, one of the greatest scholars of Persia, contributes a notable paper on "The Future of Islam," which is probably the strongest plea for Mohammedanism ever made in a magazine essay. Dr. C. E. Page gives a brilliant and exceedingly practical paper on the successful treatment of typhoid fever. Other notable papers are by Congressman John Davis, Hamlin Garland, Edwin Reed, James A. Herne, Prof. Willis Boughton, John Hudspeth, and the editor, while a remarkable feature is a symposium on Woman's Dress Reform, by six eminent women.

In Scribner's for September is an article on "The Tilden Trust Library; What Shall It Be?" giving the facts concerning Mr. Tilden's wishes as to the details of the plan, and also a most important proposal for still carrying out a large part of it by the erection of a great library building in the very centre of New York. "The last of the Buffalo" Mr. George Bird Grinnell's article, is full of a true sportsman's feeling, Mr. W. C. PUT DOWN BY THE DOG

A REVOLUTION WAS SUP-PRESSED BY A PLAYFUL PUP.

The Bull Pup Thought There Was Grand Opportunity to Have Some Fun and Started in to Enjoy Himself-Consternation Among the Revolutionists.

Another revolution has been sup-pressed in Hawaii, and the supporters of the queen are congratulating them-selves on the strength of the govern-ment. Other people recall the fact that the first Wilcox rebellion was suppressed by a baseball pitcher after the king had been driven to the royal boathouse for protection. A few who know are also telling the merry tale of how Harry Gillig's bull pup put down a revolution, defilig's bull pup put down a revolution, saved a throne and scattered the leaguering armies of the rebels—all in the opera bouffe kingdom of the Colorado Maduros. This is the story George Nagle bouffe kingdom of the Colorado Maduros. This is the story George Nagle tells:

"We were at the islands a year or two ago—Harry Gillig, Frank Unger, myself and Pierrot. Pierrot was Harry's bull pup, the joy of his owner's life, the pride of his heart. He was a fierce, bloodthirsty looking brute, and whenever a true sport would pass him the covetous regard which the man would show for the dog would make the cold chills of apprehension play leapfrog in Gillig's spinal marrow. As a matter of fact, though, Pierrot was as playful and quite as harmless as a kitten. He never bit anything in his life except the sweetbreads, chateaubriands and such delicacies with which his indulgent owner pampered him.

"Well at the islands Devid Kalakawa." pampered him.
"Well, at the islands David Kalakaua

"Well, at the islands David Kalakana was king—and a kindlier man never lived. He showed us marked attention; arranged feasts in our behalf, made me governor of an island for a day, and lost his money to us at poker. He spent nearly as much time at our cottage as mearly as much time at our cottage as he did at the palace, which was close at hand. We grew to have a genuine regard for him, because, whatever his faults, he was every inch a king in the generosity of his impulses and the love which he bore for his subjects.

"There was a condition then prevailing at the islands somewhat similar to that preceding the arrest of Wilcox, Ashford and the other conspirators. Discontent muttered on the corners. An indefinable strain was in the political atmosphere. Without knowing why, the definable strain was in the political atmosphere. Without knowing why, the onlooker felt that rebellion might set the alarm bells ringing at any moment. The wrecking of a government might have been precipitated by the jostling of a man on the sidewalk.

"The king was uneasy, though he kept a smiling face and his customary affability. Feeling as we did toward him, we shared in a measure his anxiety, and awaited the denouement with feverish impatience.

"The army was giving trouble. Ithad write army was giving trouble. It had felt its power by putting down (with the aid of the baseball pitcher) the first Wilcox revolution. It became unreasonable in its demands, and the king was soon involved in trouble with his own troops. "You know the Hawaiian army consists of about sixty-seven men and half as many officers. But though small, it is the one military prop of the island kingdom, and it has relatively as much power and importance as the kaiser's marshaled millions. And so it was that when fierce discontent and whispered denunciation were rife in the army the people's faces blanched and apprehension mingled in the merriest rout. "At last it came. One night, as Gil-

"The revolution has begun! The army is marching on the palace! shouted Gillig.

"Being a brave, aggressive man, Harry grabbed a revolver and started on a run for the palace inclosure. Being more or less of a fool, I suppose, I ran after him without any revolver. Being a dog, Pierrot ran after us both.

"When we reached the relace we found."

Pierrot ran after us both.

"When we reached the palace we found the entire army just drawing into line in front of it. There was all the thunder of the captains and the shouting which a man's heart could wish. The army had come to make a demand on the king, and was prepared to enforce it with bullet and bayonet.

"Now pretty much everything on that trip had been arranged for Pierrot's amusement. So when he saw the gloriously caparisoned army drawn up in the glare of the palace lamps he supposed it was there as a part of his fun. With a bark and a bound he started to enjoy the army.

"When Pierrot started for the army he army saw him coming. With his the army saw him coming. With his bow legs, wide jaw and red, overhanging jowl, he seemed a ravening beast. His onslaught was quick and noisy. "The army stood its ground a moment, and then began to beat a retreat. The and then began to beat a retreat. The retreat was in an instant a rout. The rout became a scramble, with the dog take the hindmost for every man's motto. This was all the more fun for Pierrot. He gave expression to his joy in wild yowls of delight. Every few moments a gorgeous officer or slightly more sub-tred by the property of the contract of the a gorgeous officer or slightly more sub-dued private would come leaping through the trees in 'a yellow cloud of fear,' Pierrot playfully cuffing his heels until attracted by some other scattered rem-nant of the leaguering host. "The rebellion was suppressed, Kala-kaua was maintained on the throne and Hawaii was again at peace—all on ac-count of Harry Gillig's bull pup."—San Francisco Examiner.

Early English Umbrellas

Early English Umbrellas.
Two centuries ago the umbrella was known and used as a sunshade. Ben Jonson and Beaumont and Fletcher alluded to it. In 1712 it was used as a rain protector. Gay in his "Trivia" speaks of the "umbrella's oily shed," which was recorded as a kind of soutwester material more serviceable than gingham or silk, which was used in its construction at that period.—Detroit Free Press.

PORTRAITS OF COLUMBUS.

The public school pupils, who are going to have the lead all over America in the celebration of the 400th annivertary of the discovery of America by Columbus, are already asking how Columbus looked.

Many leading American publications have recently contained timely articles

Many leading American publications have recently contained timely articles on the great discoverer, and the variety of portraits which has accompanied these articles has been surprising.

By the highest authorities it is conceded that there is no likeness of Columbus whose claim to consideration is indisputable.

From Oviedo and his own son Ferdinard—two persons who know him—we have the property of the property of the control of the cont

Inspitable.

From Oviedo and his own son Ferdinand—two persons who knew him—we have descriptions of his appearance, upon which must be based our judgment of the alleged portraits.

From them we learn that his face was long, neither full nor thin; his cheek bones rather high; his nose aquiline; his eyes light gray; his complexion fair and high colored. Up to the age of thirty his hair was of light color, but became rapidly gray after that age. It must be admitted in the face of these letails that not one of the portraits gives very positive evidence of presenting the great discoverer as he lived.

The earliest claimant for consideration is a wood engraving by Paolo Giovio, published in 1575, which we give.

Next in point of antiquity is the en graving called the De Bry portrait. It shows a head covered by a three cor-nered cap, the face being short and broad and having the characteristics of the Dutch in a marked degree. It does not correspond with the best authenti-cated descriptions. De Bry claimed that the original canvas from which it was taken was painted from life by order of Ferdinand, the king.

Jomard published in 1845 a portrait in support of a Titianesque canvas, which he had obtained at Vicenza. This pic-ture bore the inscription "Christophorus Columbus." He claimed that the fea-tures were in accord with the descriptures were in accord with the descrip-tion of writers contemporaneous with Columbus. The pointed beard and Flem-ish ruff he accounted for by assuming that they were the additions of a later hand. These and other accessories, however, prevented the acceptance of Jomard's views.

There are many other so called like There are many other so called likenesses of Columbus. They are widely scattered and it is not easy to link them with the three shown above, which probably have the best claims to consideration. But these three have little in common. They would never be taken for portraits of the same person.

The most authoritative descriptions of the status complexity and we conclide.

The most authoritative descriptions of the stature, complexion and personality of Columbus coincide, and yet the most generally accepted portraits are not in harmony. Many artists disregard the statement that his nose was aquiline and make it of a decidedly retrousse type; others portray him as a brunette with a short, fat and beardless face. The next time we see him he is a blond with a short, fat and beardless face. The next time we see him he is a blond with a long thin face, well covered with whiskers. We always know him, as the artist thoughtfully introduces his name; otherwise a lively guessing match might result. The style of the pictures would naturally suggest the celebrities of a few centuries ago. They might be taken for Plato, Othello the Moor, Alaric, Julius Cæsar, Richard III and a score of others whose faces figure in history. Even a composite of the many portraits could not blend or unite in one the discordant conceptions which we see everyday. We must know Columbus by his deeds, and not by his pictures. day. We must know common deeds, and not by his pictures.

The Langford Plan

The Langford Plan.

Newtonville, August 30, 1892.
To the Editor of the Graphic:
If a separation of grading is to take place in Newton, Mr. Editor, it seems to us the Langford plan is much the least objectionable; we think the city of Newton much indebted to him for his statesmanly study of the situation. The tunnel plan has gone by, and we cannot realize, that Newton would ever be satisfied with three miles of the ancient chinese wall embedded in her heart, with no power to ever remove it.or probability of its saving life. While in a discriminating adjustment of a new line of three miles through lands least costly to manage, and likely to benefit the largest area in building up, with the experience of the past, and more reliable data from which to estimate the future. We should expect that finally, whatever the cost, much compensation would come from the change to the city of Newton, besides avoiding the destruction of a large amount of existing property, and also that the ability to make more ample arrangements at different points would prove of much benefit to the road.

Our private opinion, however, is in favor of doing uothing for some twenty years, except to require the road to protect the crossings as justice and duty require.

—Rev. Lemuel C. Barnes and Mrs.
Barnes arrived home from their six months travels in Palestine and Europe on Wednesday of this week, and though their journey in foreign lands has been a most delightful one, getting home is one of the best parts of it all. The people of the Baptist church tended them a welcome home last evening the reception taking place in the church parlors. The rooms were enhanced in beauty by many flowers and potted plants arranged in artistic groupings, making the parlors more cosy and homelike to both pastor and people.
The hours of the reception were from 8 o'clock until 9.30, Rev. and Mrs. Barnes receiving, but there was a cordial informality about the affair which made it enjovable and charming. The ladies provided refreshments during the evening.

—Remarkable interest has arisen in anticipation of the approaching game between our crack Newton nine and the famous Boston Athletic Association team on Walworth's field, Labor Day. The Association nine by its very successful tour through the South and West has proven itself one of the strongest amateur teams in the country. As far as it concerns Jack Highlands and Mason, the eelebrated battery of Harvard University base ball team, the B. A. A. nine is almost impregnable. In Steams, the Amherst second baseman, they hayers will wear the B. A.A. unifore.

Newton on the other hand places the greater part of her confidence in her famous Boston College pitcher, Dowd, and in the uniformly heavy batting ability of their whole team. It will be one of the hardest fought games of the season, certainly two better teams have never batted on a Newton field. Among the Newton players will wear the B. A.A. unifore.

REPURLICAN CAUCUSES.

MR. LEESON'S FRIENDS CARRY FOUR OF THE SEVEN WARDS.

The caucuses Wednesday evening were unusually well attended, owing to the great interest felt in the contest over the councillorship, and a very remarkable thing was the presence of so many prominent citizens who are not usually seen in the caucuses. Very little inter-est was felt in anything save the council-lorship, and the United States senator-ship, about every ward showing a very decided anti-Barrett sentiment, which could hardly have been pleasing to the editor of the Record and Advertiser. Ward Six declared for Henry Cabot Lodge and a legislative caucus, and Wards Three and Four contented them-

Newton Improvement Society.

o the Editor of the Newton Graphic: Mr. John T. Langford's recent Mr. John T. Langrord's recent sug-gestion in your columns favoring the formation of a Newton Improvement Society comes none too soon. Had such a society existed twenty years ago, streets and roads could not have been laid out in the labyrinthine manner they have ever since been and continue to be made.

No effort seems ever to have been made to connect the centers of our different wards by anything like direct lines of road, and, as a consequence, we are a disconnected lot of villages with nothing in common but taxes, and a City Hall which is more easily accessible to most Waltham people than to many of our own citizens. Whether Mr. Langford's ideas go so most Waitham people than to many of our own citizens.

Whether Mr. Langford's ideas go so far as to include the formation of a society, which should be empowered to liy out streets, roads and parks and take the land for this purpose by law of eminent domain or not, I do not know, but if not I think it should, and that they should begin their work by connecting our several roads by some grand system of roads or "boulevards" so as to make each easy of access to the others, so that we may become one homogeneous community, instead of remaining as now, a series of petty villages with not a church or store in common.

What they could do, if in existence now, would be to stop the cutting of a road now being constructed into Mr. Garrison's place on Chestnut street, to be followed. I am told, in all probability, by a similar "place" on the opposite side of the street, and instead of these "not thorough fares," or at a thorough fare clear through both estates, from Mt. Vernon street towards the Shaw street school, which with the present approaches to it could hardly have been put in a more inaccessible place, for children living on the east side of West Newton.

Roads are cut now by individuals solelyto get their land into saleable parcels for house lots, and with no reference to public benefit or convenience.

The result is apparent and to be deplored. Contrast, in imagination, the Newtons as they are, with what they might have been in the hands of Frederick Law Olmstead and men like him, and we can easily comprehend what we have lost by pursuing the present no-method policy, and we shall, as a community continue to suffer by this mutilation of the landscape, so long as the avowed policy of only accepting finished streets, and neither laying out nor completing any, is continued, and, it is this mistaken, donothing, cramped, short-sighted policy which is responsible for the planless, fortuous, lot of streets and roads for which the Newtons are famous.

Labor Day Ball Game

The Walnut Parks and the Waban Parks played their annual game of ball on Potter's field before a large, enthusiastic and fashionable audience, on Mon day. The game was played under the auspices of the Walaut Park branch of the Guild of the Helping Hand.

the Guild of the Helping Hand.

The teams have been in practice for some time under the able coaching of Managers Frank Potter and "Uncle Joe."

The badges worn by the contestants were especially designed by young lady friends of the Guild and photographs were taken of the teams at the conclusion of the game by the special artist of the society.

were taken of the teams at the conclusion of the game by the special artist of the society.

As early as 9.30 the crowd began to assemble upon the field which had been put in most excellent condition by ground keeper O'Grady. At ten o'clock umpire Billy Emerson stepped to the plate, tossed the white sphere upon the diamond and called play.

It is needless to say that the game was botly contested from start to finish; the battery work of both teams was the finest seen on the field this year. Up to the 6th inning the score was very even when the Wahnuts by a lucky streak of batting aided by a few errors took the lead which they kept to the end. The Wabans were very unfortunate in having men left on bases at critical points.

The features of the game were the batting of H. Soule, G. Angier and F. Soule and the base running of Sidney Harwood and Walter Soule.

A Tricycle for Land or Water.

The people along Ogden boulevard, near Douglas park, at 9:30 o'clock one morning stopped and looked with wonder at a slender man who was riding a queer machine toward the park The amazement of those who followed was not diminished when they saw the man ride into the park, down the drive to the water and out on the lake. The man was T. J. Olsen, a boot and shoemaker.

The machine somewhat resembled a tricycle, but on the spokes of the drive wheels there were paddles and the little wheel was covered with sheet iron and served as a rudder. Underneath the main axle and about four inches from the ground two boats six feet in length the ground two boats six feet in length and eighteen inches beam, about two feet apart, like the hulls of a catamaran, adapted the queer craft to the water. The speed attained was equal to that of a rowboat, and Mr. Olsen claimed it was more easily propelled.— Chicago News-Record.

The following is a copy of a letter from a town in New Hampshire received at the office of the Hartford Fire Insurance company one day last week: "I inclose $100 in this letter, which I want paid to the Hartford Fire Insurance company of Hartford. I thought I got more insurance than my right." Inclosed was a $100 bill of the First National bank of Concord, N. H. The writing is identified as similar to two previous communications receive, by the company, inclosing, respectively, $50 and $100, making a total of $250 already received from this one source. It is evident that some beneficiary received more than his due, and is endeavoring to quiet his conscience by returning in installments the amount overpaid. Several thousand dollars have been received by the Hartford under similar circumstances.—Hartford

At Hazlewood cemetery, near Montezuma, Ia., one day last week, Charles Block, wishing to remove the remains of his wife, who died eight years ago, opened her grave. He found it full of water and was astonished at the weight of the coffin. The combined strength of five men finally brought the coffin out of the grave, and when opened it was the grave, and when opened it was found that the action of the water had turned the body to solid stone, preserving its natural appearance to a remarkable degree. Even a bouquet of flowers held by the dead woman was perfectly petrified. The skin was fair and the petrified. The skin was fair and the hair as black and glossy as in life.— Chicago Inter Ocean.

The noise made by a dog saved several persons from being burned to death in a fire which broke out in Brooklyn on a recent morning. A series of interesting experiments was conducted the other night at Stanford Bridge Grounds, London, with balloon and apparatus invented and improved by Mr. Eric Bruce for use in military signaling at night over intervening woods and hills. Within the balloon woods and hills. Within the balloon are hung on a small swinging ladder six incandescent lamps, connected by insulated cable with a battery on the ground, worked that night at twenty-four volts and giving sixty candle power of illumination. By ready manipulation of the buttons at the instrument the operator flashes on the translucent sides of the balloon the signals of the Morse or any code, and these can be easily read at a distance of six miles.

The balloon used was a small one of eighteen feet diameter, containing 1,000 feet of gas, and was held by cable at a height of about 300 feet. The strong wind prevailing rendered the position of the balloon unsteady and uncertain, but the signals were nevertheless read by military experts, and were answered from a station on land. The experiments were witnessed by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, by military attaches of the Chinese and other embassies and a number of scientific men. The experiments were varied by hangsee and a number of scientific men. The experiments were varied by hanging the lamps outside below the neck of the balloon and flashing direct. A neat report is recorded of the Marquis of Carmarthen, the Duke of Leed's eldest son, who, at the recent elections in England, was returned for Brixton by a large majority. The night before the election, while he was addressing a mass meeting, he was interrupted by a err of "Does your mother know you"s mass meeting, he was interrupted by a cry of, "Does your mother know you're out?"—a reference to his very youthful appearance. PRICES UNDER M'KINLEYISM.

The Aldrich Report Proves the Tariff a Tax.

A CAREFUL ANALYSIS OF THE FACTS AND FIGURES GIVEN IN THE REPORT— PLEASANT AND ENCOURAGING READ-ING FOR BELIEVERS IN TARIFF RE-FORM-THE EFFECTS OF HIGH PROTEC-

To the Editor of the Herald :- The Mc-Kinley bill went into effect in October. Kinley bill went into effect in October, 1890; for nearly two years it has been in operation, and we can now look back and consider some of its results, especially its effect upon prices, and compare these results with the opinions, hopes or fears of the public prior to its passage.

That the intent of the framers of the bill was to raise prices by sulting out bill was to raise prices by shutting out foreign goods from our markets is so generally conceded that arguments upon the point is unnecessary. The bill was passed and the very schedules framed by interested manufacturers, whose sole object was to increase their own profits, without regard to the gain or loss of the masses of our people.

The Republicans in the campaign of 1890 admitted that the logical results of the bill would be to increase the prices 1890 admitted that the logical results of the bill would be to increase the prices of articles upon which the tariff was raised, and devoted their whole attention of demonstrating that higher prices were a sure sign of prosperity, and that lower prices, which must result from tariff reductions, would result in depression in business and lower wages.

For example, President Harrison stated that, in his opinion, a cheaper coat meant a cheaper man or woman under the coat; McKinley announced that "cheap" and "nastry" go together; while Henry Cabot Lodge proclaimed to the world the discovery that cheapness is un-American.

A year went by; another campaign set in, and the speeches in the fall of 1891 were again largely devoted to the effect of the McKinley bill upon prices, each side contending for or against a rise in prices as a fact as the respective speakers were Democratic or Republican.

These two campaigos gave rise to a great demand from thinking people for valuable statistics in regard to the course of prices and wages both prior to and after the Mckinley bill.

On March 3, 1891, the Senate of the United States passed a resolution directing the committee on finance to examine into the report upon the effect of the tariff laws upon prices of agricultural and manufactured products at home and abroad, and upon wages, domestic and foreign.

The committee thereupon proceeding its investigation, and has lately med-foreign.

The committee thereupon proceeded in its investigation, and has lately made a partial report entitled "Report on Retail Prices and Wages"

Senator Aldrich, in the Senate speech upon the report, treats the report as if it had to do solely with the effect of the McKinley bill, and not the tariff law in general, upon general, upon

PRICES AND WAGES.

His argument was directed to the point that higher duties mean lower, and not higher, not lower, wages; and, in support of this proposition, he cited the so-called Aldrich report giving the price variations for 214 selected commodities covering the period from June, 1880, to September, 1891.

The first point that must strike the student on inspecting this report is that it purports to be and, in fact, is, only a partial report, giving price variations solely, without regard to tariff changes in the McKinley bill.

The report states that on Sept. 1, 1891, 136 out of the 214 articles were lower in price than in June, 1889, and that 75 of the 214 articles have lower in price than in June, 1889, and that 75 of the 214 articles had increased in price at the end of the same period.

On these facts Senator Aldrich and other Republican leaders completely changed their tune, and now claim that the object of the McKinley bill was to bring about that very cheapness which they had previously characterized as "nasty" and "un-American," and they proudly point to the Aldrich report as proof that the McKinley object of cheapness had been in fact accomplished.

But a little reflection will show conclusively that the McKinley object of cheapness had been in fact accomplished.

But a little reflection will show conclusively that the McKinley conclusively that the McKinley conclusively that the McKinley object of cheapness had been in fact accomplished.

by tarin reductions, and, consequently, as they claimed, were cheap, nasty and un-American.

Of the 215 articles chosen by the Senate committee, only 103, or 47 per cent, were increased in duty by the McKinley bill; the remaining 112, constituting over 52 per cent, of the whole, were not affected by the bill, except as to 29 articles, and these were lowered in duty. Of the 103 articles, in which there was an increase of duty, there were at least 31 articles, coming under the general head of food products, in which the increase of duty could have no possible effect upon home prices, for the reason that we imported practically none even before the McKinley bill, and because in many of them the home price is determined in the markets of the world, where our surplus of such products is exported and sold in competition with foreign labor and foreign products. Such articles are beans, brad, butter, cheese, flour, meal, meats, milk, vegetables (excluding potatoes and onions), oats, corn, barley, rye and wheat.

Deducting these 31 articles, which even price by customs duties, we have left 2 articles only in which there has been an increase of duty in the McKinley bill which could possibly affect prices.

If we are to consider

THE EFFECT OF THE MCKINLEY INCREASE of duties, therefore, we must limit our-selves, to these 72 articles. A brief con-sideration of the report, as a whole, will at once disclose its value to the cause of tariff reform.

In the food schedule we find that out of 33 articles which increased in price, 20, or 87 per cent., were increased in duty by the McKinley bill; in the clothing schedule 15 out of the 16 articles—63 per cent.—increased in price, were increased in duty; in the drug schedule all the articles increasing in price were increased in duty; in the house furnishing schedule out of the 13 articles increased in price, 10, 77 per cent., were increased in duty.

creased in price, 58, or 77 per cent., were increased in duty by the McKinley bill.
Conversely, in the food schedule, out of 27 articles which the report states had fallen in price, 16, or 55 per cent., were either left unchanged in duty or were lowered; in the clothing schedule, out of 45 which decreased in price. 20 had the duties lowered by McKinley; in the fuel schedule, four out of five; and in the metal schedule every article decreased in price was left unchanged as to duty or lowered; in the lumber schedule, seven out of eleven articles falling in price were left unchanged or lowered in duty; in the drug schedule, three out of the five articles falling in price were left unchanged or lowered in duty; in the house furnishing goods schedule, out of 14 articles falling in price. 11, or 78 per cent., were unchanged in duty; and all articles in the miscellaneous schedule falling in price were left unchanged in duty by the McKinley bill.

To sum up: Out of the 139 articles which decreased in price, 93, or 67 per laneous schedule falling in price were left unchanged in duty by the McKinley bill.

To sum up: Out of the 139 articles which decreased in price, 93, or 67 per cent., were left unchanged in duty, or in some cases were lowered. Thus 77 per cent. of the increased in price were accompanied by increases in duty; while 67 per cent. of the decreases in price were accompanied by rither no change or a decrease in duty.

Thus we see the absurdity of the Republican doctrine that high duties make low prices; the Aldrich report, rightly read, conveys in unmistakable terms the intelligence—so long ago announced by tariff reformers—that high tariffs make high prices, while lower tariffs make lower prices.

The claim of the Republicans, analyzed, is in effect that our 214 selected articles, those which McKinley left untouched by his tariff-protected hand, have so far followed natural laws—in spite of high taxes levied by earlier tariff bills—that they have fallen in price sufficiently to make up for the increase in prices of articles upon which McKinley increased the taxes, and leave a net fall in prices of 4100 of 1 per cent.

If the Republican party can extract any comfort from the Aldrich report, they are welcome to it; but they never can hope by means of it to convince the American people that the effect of high protection is to lower prices or that the tariff is not a tax.

A ONE SIDED GAME.

THE NEWTONS ARE DEFEATED BY THE

There could hardly have been a finer day for the base ball enthusiasts than the afternoon of Labor Day, and nearly a thousand people were on the grounds at 3.30 o'clock when time was called for the game between the Boston Athletic As-sociation team and the Newton Base Ball Club on Walworth's field, Newton Centre.

The seats, which extend on either side, were filled with ladies and gentlemen among whom were many represen-tative people of the "Garden City." The outskirts of the field were lined with carriages filled with pleasure seekers who watched a very interesting but one sided game. The Newtons had their best men on seekers who watched a very interesting but one sided game.

The Newtons had their best men on the field with Dowd in the box and O'Brien behind the bat and were prepared to put up their best game.

The B. A. A. team had Highlands of the Harvard team and Murray for a battery, Mason not showing up as expected, and the fine work of Highlands was evident as time and again Newton men went out on strikes.

The features of the game were the great pitching of Highlands and the sharp fielding of the B. A. A., who played an errorless game. The first two innings saw some good plays and neither side succeeded in making a run.

The Newtons got rattled in the third, allowing their opponents to score three times. The Athletics added another run in the fourth inning, the score then standing B. A. A. 4, Newton 0, and in the sixth were allowed two more by the home team. In the last three innings neither side scored.

In the first of the seventh with the B. A. A. team at the bat, Soule got to first, Corbett struck out and Murray anocked a fly which was captured by Hovey, who sent it to first, putting out Soule who was stealing second and making a pretty double play.

Hubbard came to the bat for Newton and was thrown out at first, then McLean was out on a fly to Dickenson.

O'Brien knocked a pretty grounder and got safely to first, but Hunting struck out retiring the side.

In the first of the last inning, Farren of the visitors struck a hot grounder to first giving LeLean a chance, which he accepted, to make a brilliant pickup putting Farren out.

Dickenson struck a fine fly to right field, Warren catching him out. Soule struck out.

In the last half Warren hit out to second Hubbard, struck out and McLean was put out before reaching first.

The score is appended:

MR. FORTNER'S MABITAL CLAIMS.

The last of the dainty volumes in Appleton's summer series is a collection of short stories by Richard Malcolm Johnston, the author of "Mr. Bill Williams," who gives such delighful sketches of homely Southern life. The story which gives the title to the volume and occupies about half the book is now problished for the first time and fully meets the expectations of his friends. They are very real persons who are described here and the author touches upon the church life in the country districts of Ge rgia, and the fervid way in which some of the members accept their narrow creeds, and the reader finds that human nature is much the same Northor South. The other stories have some of them appeared in the magazines but they are entertaining enough to be worthy of a second reading.

PEOPLE OF PISGAH.

The reader picks up this little volume expecting to be interested and the story opens seriously enough, with the dignified pastor of c swell New York City church as the hero. But when he goes to a farm in Vermont for quiet in which to write a convention sermon the author gives free pen to his imagination and one comic situation follows another and the story almost becomes a burlesque. Its humor is irresistible, however, and the Rev. Dr. Nuynthee has a very varied vacation, hardly suited to sermon writing. The hero is left with dismal possibilities of trouble facing him which the reader can fill out for himself. D. Appleton & Co., publishers.

Yes, that was so. For years I suffered severely with serofula; sores broke out all over my body, and I am unable to tell one half that I suffered. I was not able to obtain relief until I used Sulphur Bitters, which completely cured me.—C. B. Dale, 17 Allston street, Boston.

Are the main-stay of our republic. In them are being cultivated the minds which are to be our future law-makers and leaders in every walk in life. How essential it is that these minds should be united to strong, healthy bodies. So many children suffer from impurities and poisons in the blood that it is a wonder that they ever grow up to be men and women. Many parents cannot find words strong enough to express their gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for its good effect upon their children. Scrofula, salt rheum and other diseases of the blood are effectually and permanently cured by this excellent medicine, and the whole being is given strength to resist attacks of disease.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is an houest medicine, honestly advertised for those diseases which it honestly and absolutely cures.

THE COUNCILLORSHIP.

It was a most interesting contest Wednesday night between the friends of Messrs. Leeson and Gilman, and the caucuses reminded one of the old school fight, they were so largely attended. Both sides professed confidence in their ability to carry a majority of the wards, and the Gilman men were hardly willing to allow that Mr. Leeson could carry his own ward, and talked very earnestly about the duty of all the delegates uniting on the candidate who had the ma-managed, and some of the most skilful workers in the city were in charge of it, and they certainly deserve credit for the splendid showing they made. If there was a Gilman man in the city who was not out, it was certainly not from lack of solicitation.

Mr. Leeson's friends, on the other hand, were amateurs in political work, and we don't mind saying that they might have been better organized, and have secured a larger attendance if they had gone systematically to work. But it was gone systematically to work. But it was largely a spontaneous movement, and the gentlemen interested in Mr. Leeson acted on their own responsibility and did only what their own inclinations prompted. That in spite of the systematic canvas on the other side Mr. Leeson carried a majority of the wards showed the popular appreciation of his shillty. the popular appreciation of his ability

The question now is what will the delegates do? If they go to the convention divided, Senator Raymond of Somerville will secure the nomination and Newton will not be in it. The Gilman delegates have the power to keep the nomination from coming to Newton, but they cannot do anything to help their candidate, and it would seem to be the duty of patriotic citizens to bow to the will of the majority and to take means to secure the honor for Newton. It will be worth a good deal to the city to have the honor of naming the councillor, and the Gilman delegates will probably all admit the justice of all that has been said in favor of Mr. Leeson. It was a fair con-test, and the most popular man won. We do not believe that any one will feel inclined to make a personal grievance out of the result of the contest, and it is always the part of wisdom to take the next best thing, if unable to secure one's first choice. The councillor contest has certainly given a good deal of in-terest to a very dull campaign, and it was a decided relief from the Borden trial, the cholera, the Carnegie strike and the other sensations in the daily papers.

THE BORDEN CASE.

That the State has failed utterly to present any evidence indicating Lizzie Borden's guilt of the alleged killing of her father and stepmother is the opinion of many people who have carefully read the evidence submitted in the case. The girl from the start has been the only ob-ject of suspicion, so far as the govern ject of suspicion, so far as the government agents were concerned. District Attorney Knowlton says that she alone This is not all nor the best of it. To Attorney Knowlton says that she alone had the exclusive opportunity of committing the crime, and his opinion is shared by the Fall River police and government detectives. So confident is the district attorney upon this point that he affirms that the crime could only have been committed by an inmate of the house. His reasoning, however, is purely assumptive and assertive. The government has not demonstrated by evidence that the crime could not have been committed by some one who entered from without, notwithstanding the ingenious argument of the district attorney based upon the locked and boilted doors. It is a well known fact that experts of long and practical experience in criminal matters entirely disagree with his theory. The burden of proof rests with the state, yet it has met with signal defeat in almost every theory it has set up to establish the guilt of the accused. It pretended to have settled the difference in the time of the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Borden, but what fair-minded man is there who would admit the claim when medical men very generally say that the state's digestion theory is absurd.

Lizzie Borden, her accusers say, ought to have seen her stepmother's body when she went up stairs. How was it then that Mr. Borden did not see it, if the government is correct it its conclusion, that he went up stairs before he was lim a great deal of time? "Yes. He mitting the crime, and his opinion is shared by the Fall River police and government detectives. So confident is the district attorney upon this point that government is correct it its conclusion, that he went up stairs before he was murdered. He did go up stairs, if Bridget Sullivan's testimony is to be case for the state is the claim that it has withheld much important evidence which withheld much important evidence which some of the sensational newspaper writers say will throw light upon many phases of the case, at present resting under a deep cloud of mystery. That sort of talk may be safely construed as pure buncombe. The government case is certainly susceptible of being strengthened by additional testimony, but its representatives failed in their duty, if they neglected to utilize the important evidence in their possession, for that presented was from far convincing in character. character.

Judge Blaisdell, it would seem, thought otherwise when he found the accused probably guilty. Was he influenced by the possibilities of future evidence or was he, like District Attorney Knowlton and Marshal Hilliard, seeking to justify Lizzle Borden's arrest? His decision, which Mrs. Mary A. Livermore in an interview pronounces "atrocious," was certainly not justified by the testimony.

THE order providing for sower assessments has at list been passed and the ordinence is now being passed through the various stages. The order is not all that could have been desired, many thinking that the city should assume more than one fourth, the least that the law allows. But abuttors should be law allows. But abuttors should be thankful to have the city assume as much as that, and they would not have got that if had it not been for the last legisthat if had it not been for the last legislature. The followers of the Harbach plan have acted like the hunter in the famous story of the turkey and the buzzard. They were willing to compromise and they would give the other side the buzzard and they keep the turkey, or they would take the turkey and the other side could keep the buzzard. They would let the city pay one fourth, as the law provides for that, and they thought the other side was very unreasonable not to be very grateful for this great concession. this great concession.

THE question of the removal of the tracks is still agitating Newton citizens, and it would seem to be an easy matter to convince the Boston and Albany officials that it was not only the easies but the least expensive method of getting rid of the grade crossings. There is no question of the benefit it would be to Newton, in the way of increasing valuation of all the property that would be then added to the south side of the track. There is talk of calling a public meeting of those interested in this improvement, during the present month, in order to voice public sentiment on the WATERTOWN is taking measures to clean up the river and its borders, and Newton and Boston are doing their part to assist. Cambridge is now the worst offender, with its sewers emptying directly into the river, and has the most difficult part of the work that should be

A caucus of the Councillor delegates has been called to meet at Young's Hotel, this afternoon at 3.30. It was signed by the eight Leeson delegates and by Mr. Henry E. Cobb, one of the Gilman delegates from Ward One. It is hoped to make the delegation unanimous.

It is said that all the County delegates but one are in favor of Geo. C. Travis for District Attorney. That one ought to unite and make it unanimous.

A PROMISING YOUNG MAN.

Samuel Gladding, at the age of forty, was one of the most promising young men of Aberdeen. So he had been, when, a lad of twelve, he had "accepted a position" (i e., dusted and swept out) in his father's store, and so in all likelihood he would be even when senilty quavered a contradiction; for a promising young man in a small city, like an evergreen, may wither, but he never grows old.

grows old. The Gladdings were of pure descent in the order of respectability. So successfully, for generations, had they dealt in hats and caps that an innocuous Asmodeus, of a Sunday, peering into any family pew in any neighboring church could have read their labels in the up-turned headgear of both sire and grand-child. The course of Samuel's career had been as smooth as one of his silk tiles, and there was far less nap about it, for he was justly considered wide awake. He became the head of the awake. He became the head of the house when his father died. He married, and his wife was pretty and dutiful, his children like olive plants around his table. He also became a Deacon in the Congregational church, an incorporeal hereditament appertaining to the Gladdings, and he passed the plate with the air of an emperor washing the feet of the poor—it couldn't harm him, and it might do some good. and it might do some good.

Throughout his limited domain Samuel was despotic. His clerks trembled before his tread, or, more literally, his squeak. His household heard and squeak. His household heard and obeyed. His brother-in-law, who at an early period had lighted in a book-keeper's cage and of course remained obeyed. His brother-in-law, who at an early period had lighted in a book-keeper's cage and of course remained captive, gaped eagerly to receive the seeds of wisdom which he carelessly tossed through the bars.

Samel was conscious of his personal gifts. He would have said that he followed his good old mother's advice and counted his blossings—an admirable rule if the account is accurate. Despite his carroty hair and scorbutic skin, he knew he was handsome. Despite his stooping shoulders and shrunken calves, he felt he was strong. If his heels were high and his hat constructed on a private elongated block, these facts did not militate against his conception of the lottiness of his stature. In fine, Mr. Hadding believed that he was the most promising young man in the greatest city of the world's greatest country. Whether it requires a high grade of ability to convince a beaming matron that a fold of Sootch cloth, with two dangling strings, is a becoming cap for the egg-shaped head of her dear little son may be doubted, but when webs of the fabric and rods of the tape are thus disposed of, and the profits saved and snowballed into a competency, it must be conceded that Mr. Gladding's valuation of himself was moderate.

Now, from the age of twelve to that of forty, Mr. Gladding had scarcely passed the confines of his native town. Hence, perhaps, his belief in its ore-eminence, as a canary prefers its swing to a leafy bough. But gradully an intention had been forming in his mird, which, when it became a resolution, he issued under the seal of his own infallibility. He would take a three months' trip to Europe. His knowledge of what he termed foreign parts was derived solely from the illuminated bands which were pasted in his wares of home manufacture; yet he believed that he was thereby conversant with the people and their tongues, especially with the French language—"Nonpareil" and "Bom Marche" being the causes of this effect. The little wife was tearful, but submissive; the bother-in-law respectful to instructions.

"A thousand pardons," said Mr.
Gladding, gallantly.
"One is more about the control of the contro "One is more than ample, and 'tis the rude ocean, not you, sir, that owes that."

one is more unan ample, and its the rude ocean, not you, sir, that owes that."

Samuel passed on, elated. How roguish had been the gleam of the fair one's eyes; how fascinating her smile at parting! "There is something about me that catches women," he murmured. "I wonder what it is?" Possibly others, if sharing the thought, would have shared the wonderment also.

That afternoon he ventured to approach the unknown as she sat reading in an extension chair, with her Japanese parasol of stout bamboo by her side. She received him graciously, and in a few moments had scrutinized him through the glasses of his conceit which he unhesitatingly proffered her. She saw the hat store, the competency, the humble little wife, the obsequious brother-in-law, the pre-eminent obsequious brother-in-law, the pre-eminent position in the pre-eminent city. Samuel, in his turn gained the confidence of this new friend. He learned that she was a widow named Mrs. Lascelles, "of the Lascelles, you knew." How, he didn't know, but he nodded sagaciously. She had visited the States for her health, and was returning to live in London with her brother, Professor Selers, "the inventor, you know." And again Samuel nodded in his fatuity.

you know." And again Samuel nodded in his fatuity.

Their friendship, thus started by mutual trust, was cemented through a singular hap. One day they stood together by the hatchway gazing down into the regions of gloom and red flashes where the stokers were toiling like lost souls. It was calm. The sun was high and his rays ardent. Mr. Gladding held the stout parasol over his fair companion. "How different we seem from those creatures," he said. "As if we were birds, and they grubs."

At this poetic instant the ship gave an oblique roll, yielding to the reminiscent billow of a distant storm. Mrs. Lascelles was thrown to one side, and Mr. Gladding forward. There was a wiggle, a scream, and a plunge, and Samuel, unlike his Biblical namesake, was not there.

As Mrs. Lascelles, horror-stricken, gazed down the terrific abyss she saw him falling, but not rapidly. No, it seemed rather as if there must have been verity in his recent metaphor, though birds don't flop so awkwardly nor carry parasols. Mr. Gladding, in his desperation, had clung to the bamboo handle, and the stout web, aided by the buoyancy of the heated air and his real, not imaginary, weight, was sustaining him.

and as the passengers crowded about the divan, an angelic being, all tremulous with rapture, laid his head in her lap, and laved his brow.

"My preserver," murmured Mrs. Lascelles. "How graceful! how galant! Had you not ventured that daring plunge, we must both have perished."

Mr. Gladding was a rapid convert—be could not reason; he could only believe. He heard the widow explain: "He thrust me away at his own peril." He heard the passengers exclaim: "How brave!" "How beroe!"

He sat upright, and smilled as if a rural household were invading his store.

"A mere nothing," he protested. "I always was an athlete."

Thereafter S muel and Mrs. Lascelles became close associates. She called him her hero, and this of itself was a reason and an excuse for an ideal communion. Besides, she was so interested in him, Fate had denied her the love of a husband, the caress of an infant's hand; yet her nature cried out to fulfil its mission of serving, of protecting, and through him might its exigency be innocently assuaged.

"Your field is too limited, your qualities to servisited."

him might its exigency be innocently assuaged.

"Your field is too limited, your qualities too restricted," she persisted.

"But, Ada," he contended—he called her "Ada," for was she not a sister too him?—"you forget all I've toid you," and Samuel felt hurt that his glories should be thus contemned.

"Oh, I know; but what at best have you accomplished except supremacy among dunces? I read your character far clearer than you are able to do. Your soul is not satisfied; it is starving. You give it bread, indeed, but it craves ambrosia."

brosia."

Mr. Gladding puffed out his puny chest and looked pleased. His soul had never disturbed him; but now he seemed to feel a suffoothing sensation which surely must be spiritual. For the first time in his life he knew discontent, and when this comes to a vain man it is masterful. "With opportunity," she continued, "You might lead civilization's cotilion instead of cutting pireon-wings in a contradance. What is the key to the hidden treasure of your nature? Ah, my friend, it is a golden one. You smile sa dings, we have the contradance. You man the same that you there had not man the hidden treasure of your nature? Ah, my friend, it is a golden one. disappeared. And "Sammy" said disappeared. And "Sammy" said when the store that the divil is that—a Chinee apparation?" shouted a fireman as Samuel suddenly sprawled among them.

They bore him, bruised, dizzy and bleeding (from the nose), to the cabin, the store that the stor found him open and affable, and they showed their appreciation by laudatory articles, in which the university at Leyden and the Sultan's seraglio proved of good stead. Mr. Gladding was highly commended for acumen and enterprise, the was referred to as "our distinguished to wnsman" and assured that Aberdeen would be, as ever "faithful to the responsibilities of the hour."

The succeeding few weeks were a heyday of popularity and exultation for Samuel. A company was speedily organized, his main difficulty being to reserve as many shares for himself as his cupidity craved, such was the urgency of friends who desired to "get in on the ground floor." The rich, the poor, and, alas! the widows and the fatherless, flocked with their subscriptions to the office of the "Occidental Indestructible Storage Company," and saw in the flowing beard of the professor the advent of another Faraday, but ne'er a sign of Cagliostro, Then all watted the announced exhibition of their treasure, to be given in the rear of Gladding's store, with an impatience unmixed with anxiety.

But, as with every silver liming there must be a cloud, so Samuel, in the midst of his feast, detected the shadow of a dangling sword. The expenses of the enterprise were enormous. Yet he stood in such dread of the professor's sucers regarding provincial parsimony that he met each draft without open protest. But it irked him to see the certain results of his 'old reliable hats and caps' disappear, and naught remain save suave assurances and vast piles of pig iron. Where did the money go? Pig iron was cheap. It must be the mysterious coating; so the professor avouched, and so he came to believe; yet he didn't like the surprised glances and furtive whistles of his brother-in-law, the bookkeeper. At length the eventful day of the exhibition dawned, and before its beams Mr. Gladding's forebodings vanished. He had kept the faith, now he was to have works also. He walked up and down his shop, rubbing his hands together, and greeting each arrival with true commercial was a glimmer within the gliss oval which might have equalled the attempt of a very dark cellar. It flickered for a moment, and then went out.

So did the stockholders, hot with indignation, heedless of the professor's labored explanation that American carbon was so very impure. They themselves had seen the fall, and all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't restore their confidence, "Don't tell me!" was the unanimous cry.

"There must be an iron mine near the Sultar's seraglio," sneered one. "The light of learning must be rather dim at Leyden," snarled another. And the following day local brokers were able to supply blocks of the "Indestructible Storage" stock at a discount.

"Buy it up, buy it up!" urged the professor as he burriedly packed his valise. "I'm off to the Continent to corner the European carbon in sight, and when I return we'll show them."

Yes, when! Then followed a long, dreary time for poor Samuel, filled with averted faces, jibes, curses, and pitiable lamentations. The stock of the "Indestructible" isank so low that it was carried out of the brokers' offices in waste baskets and given to the children to play with. Suits were begun against the hapless promoter for misrepresentation, and he scarcely felt safe even amid the "old reliable hats and caps."

One day he sat at home alone and disconsolate, within the room which he called his "study," since he was always idle there. The door opened and closed, and Mrs. Lascellas, as beaming, as radiant as ever, stood before him. "Did you think your Egeria had deserted you, Sammy?" she said.

"I'd idn't know," he faltered feebly.

"Everything will now be well. The clouds roll away and the future smiles. My brother, the professor, has obtained the refusal of the purest carbon in Europe. An advance of $10,000 from you will secure it. Think—"

"Ten thousand dollars!" screamed Mr. Gladding. "Preposterous, outrageous! I'm ruined already; would he skin me alive? He's got the refusal, has he?

Well, he shall have another, and a flat one, too."

"Sa

Mr. Gladding glanced up sullenly.
There stood his Egeria with brimming eyes and outstretched arms. In an instant the miserable man was at her feet, stant the miserable man was at her feet, kissing her hand.

There was a noise on the stairs, the door was flung open, and in rushed the submissive little wife, with all the olive branches clinging to her skirts, far more resembling willows from their tears.

"Madam," said the one who, always so humble, now seemed a queen in her outraged dignity, "you shall leave my house at once. I have submitted in silence while my husband's fatulity has affected his fortune alone; now that his honor is touched, I assert my right. Remember, these are his children and I am his wife. (50?)

Go!"

Mrs. Lascelles laughed, and Samuel sank back shuddering in his chair.

"For a pony I will," she said, lightly.
"I must have my expenses."

"Give her the money, Samuel."

Mr. Gladding obeyed, and with a taunting, "Ta, ta, Sammy," his Egeria faded from his sight and his light forever.

A Sea Serpent in Lake Erle.
While the schooner Madeline Downing, on its way from Buffalo to this city, was passing the Dunning, about 150 miles east of here in Lake Erie, Cap-

Drawing near, to the surprise of the captain and all on board, a huge sea serpent wrestling about in the waters as if fighting with an unseen enemy was seen. It soon quieted down and lay at full length on the surface of the water.

Ca, tain Woods estimates it to be about fifty feet in length and not less than four feet in circumference of body. Its head was projecting from the water about four feet. He says it was a terrible looking object. It had viciously sparkling eyes and a large head. Fins were plainly seen seemingly sufficiently large to assist the snake in propelling itself through the water. The body was dark brown in color, which was uniform all along. From what he says it would be capable of crushing a yawl boat and its occupants.

Sermons as an Investment.

What is the most paying form of literature? Under certain circumstances, erature? Under certain circumstances, apparently, sermons. The sermon which Canon Fleming recently preached at Sandringham has already realized a profit of £1,300. Considering the comparative brevity of such a contribution to literature, this must almost be a "record" in publishing profits. Arrested in the Eighth Inning.
Two twelve-year-old colored lads climbed a tree one day and proceeded to watch the ball game without liquidating at the box office. All would have been serene if they had not broken off several branches of the tree. The owner of the tree, who happened to be in the grounds, saw the destruction of his shade tree, and getting an officer, slipped around and pulled the boys trom their perch. The youths did not mind being arrested, which occurred in the last half of the eighth inning, but begged the officer to let them remain until the game was finished.—Washington Letter.

Edison's French Rival.

Edison's French Rival.

A young French chemist, M. Henri Courtonne, is credited with a new discovery. Sound being transmissible by telephone, M. Courtonne argued by a rigorous analogy that light might be transmitted too. As the telephone consists of a transmitter, a wire and a receiver, there was reason to believe that these three organs might be adapted for transmitting light vibrations, and for transmitting light vibrations, and for this purpose the transmitter and receiver should be prepared chomically for receiving and giving out light instead of sound vibrations. This was done by substituting sensitized photographic plates for the ordinary telephone plate.

One of the plates was placed in front

One of the plates was placed in Irone of an aperature, through which an image was cast, and this image has been forwarded by wire and has been seen at the other end. The first apparatus was very imperfect, and M. Courtonne, having heard that Mr. Edison was on the track of a similar discovery received to ing heard that Mr. Edison was on the track of a similar discovery, resolved to publish his experiments, a description of which he, however, sent in a sealed letter to the Academy in 1889. This letter is only to be opened at the sender's request. The consequences of the telephotography cannot be overestimated. He Condemed the Truck System.

Lord Winmarleigh, whose death at a patriarchal age was announced recently, was but a name to the present generation. When he was sent to the house of lords he virjually retired from public life, and devoted himself almost entirely to the care of his large estates. Colonel Wilson-Patten, to call him by the name by which he was known in parliament for more than forty years, was an excellent type of Conservative. His first speech in the house of commons was a condemnation of the truck system, and he it was who first called attention to the hardships inflicted upon the working classes of Lancashire by the tax on printed cottons.

the working classes of Lancashire by the tax on printed cottons.

In the interests of manufacturing Lancashire, Colonel Wilson-Patton always took a serious interest, and such was his popularity among all classes that he held a seat for the county for forty-three years with only one contest. The bitter domestic sorrows which fell upon his later years—the deaths of both his sons and his only grandson—aroused deep sympathy even in those who knew him only by name and reputation.—St. James Budget.

Something New in the Snake Line.
A large snake of unknown species was killed by A. C. Reichelderfer, superintendent of the Lina Natural Gas company, on S.W. Doty's farm, in St. Mary's. Mr. Reichelderfer, in company with Mr. Spear, a prominent oil man, was walking over the farm when the reptile attacked him. It made several vicious attempts to bite him, but was unsuccessful, and after a few vain trials Mr. Reichelderfer finally procured a club and dispatched his snakeship. The monster measured six feet long and its back was covered with scales. Its skin is on exhibition in this city and has attracted great attention. Thus far no one has been able to name it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer. Something New in the Snake Line.

The Company Responsible.

In Michigan it is unlawful for railway companies to neglect to block the frogs on their roads, so that the feet of employees may not be caught therein. A ployees may not be caught therein. A switchman, while uncoupling cars, had his feet caught in an unblocked frog and was injured. He sued for damages, and proved that other frogs in the yard were unblocked and that the yardmaster had been notified of their condition. The court decided that it was no defense that the company had employed men to keep all frogs blocked, and that proper material had been furnished for that purpose, because the negligence of the employees was the negligence of the company.—New York Sun.

It will be presented next week at the Grand Opera House. Few plays have worn as well. It was the elder Chanfrau who first made "Kit" popular, and it is now the younger Chanfrau, whose acting so much resembles his father's, who carries off the honors. There is a fascination about the drama, and since last seen in Boston the play has been revised to the extent of brightening its comedy parts. Mr. Chanfrau is supported by a very strong company. Mlle. Nada Reyval, the direct importation from Paris will be seen another week in her wonderful electrical act, and she alone is sure to draw crowded houses. PARK THEATRE—Rice's Surprise Party in the burlesque extravaganza, "1492," opened the season at the Park Theatre Monday night, scoring a brilliant success. It was a fine production and played to a crowded house. "1492," as revised and improved by Manager Rice, is funnier than ever, full of wise saws and modern hits, with all the old favorite songs, and a rich collection of new melodies, gorgeously costumed and replete with scenic and electric effects. The scenery and costumes are alone worthy of special notice, being at once resplendent and appropriate. The eye is dazzled at every turn, and the interest of the spectator is kept alive by the graceful dancing and charming singing of the leading characters. This brilliant, historical piece, with its modern setting and tasteful dressing, is sure to prove a drawing card throughout the country, especially at this time, when Columbus, the discovery of America and the World's Fair are topics of popular interest. No piece has been presented for years in which there were more beautiful, girls, more dazzling scenery, more bright costumes, more catchy, tuneful melodies and more mechanical surprises. It is a beautiful work of art, set in a bright gilt frame, a work of art, too, full of vitality, wit, fun, music and color. PARK THEATRE-Rice's Surprise Party

Would Have Died.

Holyoke, Mass., November, 1800.

I was in pain all over, could get no rest either night or day and was not able to do any work for months, but after taking Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic only one week, I was able to sit up and attend to my dressmaking. I had paid over two hundred dollars to dectors and got no benefit. I certainly think I should have died long ago if I had not got this medicine.

The Third Councillorship

The Third Councillorship.

The 3d councillor district Republican convention, which is to be held this afternoon at Wesleyan Hall in Boston, promises to be an exceedingly lively gathering. The three leading candidates are Mr. J. R. Leeson and Senator Gilman of Newton and Senator F. H. Raymond of Somerville. Newton will put in the claim, and use it for all it is worth, that this city has not had the honor or of the councillorship for 25 years.

the honor or of the councillorship for 25 years.

Unfortunately she has two candidates, neither of whom will withdraw from the contest. Mr. Leeson carried four of the seven wards and Senator Gilman the other wards. An attempt was made by calling a conference of the Newton delegates to bring about a union, but without success. A conference of the Somerville delegation was held Wednesday evening, at which, it is reported, 15 out of the 20 delegates agreed to support Mr. Leeson. In consequence, the friends of the latter are confident of his nomination today, if not on the first, on the second ballot.

Cottage Hospital Notes.

There are now twenty-one nurses engaged at the Hospital, some of whom are pupils under instruction, and some are qualified to answer calls for nursing in our city when not on duty in the Hospital.

A few cases of typhold fever have already come in this fall. There may be others after awhile unless great care is taken by those who are exposed to this disease, which seems to be specially prevalent in the fall.

At the special meeting of the trustees, held last Monday, it was voted to put in additional facilities for heating the buildings.

The extension of the dining room and kitchen was deterred for the lack of means to pay for it. Special gifts for this purpose would be very acceptable.

The Hospital grounds are generally in beautiful condition now, but there is great need of improving the entrance towards West Newton. The pathway and steps are rather unsightly, and should be changed, but funds are scarce.

It seems very strange when fruit is so

It seems very strange when fruit is so abundant that so little is sent to the Hospital. People who have apple trees, should set aside some for the sick and send it up. Housekeepers when they do their preserving should mark some of the jars and bottles "For the Hospital."

There have been so many patients during the year, it has become necessary to replace the bed linen used in the wards. The Sewing Circles connected with the various churches in our city have here an opportunity for fall work. Sheets should be three yards long, two and a half yards wide, two inch hem. Pillow slips, forty inch cotton, one yard long, two linch hem. At this time some of our friends may have half worn night clothes which can be used for the sick, others may have fruit and vegetables to contribute. The directors in the several districts will receive and forward anything for the Hospital.

It was referred by the mayor to the highway committee.

Lewis H. Bacon petitioned for gravel sidewalks on Chestnut street, and gave notice of intention to erect a dwelling house 40x42 feet on Chestnut street.

ENCROACHMENT HEARING.

ENGROACHMENT HEARING.
At 7.30 o'clock a hearing was granted Benj. Dickerman and others for alleged encroachment by the N. & B. street railway on private lands on Woodward street, also asking that the tracks be moved to the centre of Woodward street.
Benj. Dickerman gave the history of the road and its boundaries from 1726.
No record of the width had been found, but from the old wall boundary it was about 45 feet wide at this place. It was claimed that the poles are upon private property, being 49 feet 9 inches from the line on the opposite side of the street.
The track is situated over the old wall boundary, which has been buried by filling in. The situation of the tracks closes the land to access from Woodward street and to improvements. He asked that the track be changed to the centre of the street.

Mr. Stone also appeared presenting similar claaims. The hearing was then closed.
Alderman Hyde presented a petition similar claims. The hearing was then closed.

Alderman Hyde presented a petition from Otis Pettee and thirty prominent residents of Upper Falls asking for a police officer for day duty in that place. Referred to the committee on police. A hearing on the taking of land in Chesley street and private lands for common sewers was closed, no remonstrants appearing.

EDDY STREET INDIGNATION.
A hearing was then opened for taking

A hearing was then opened for taking land on Eddy street for sewer purposes.

Mr. Leonard appeared for Mrs. J. A. Stearns. He had no objection to the sewer in the street, but believed the street should be accepted by the city. A good deal of feeling had been aroused among property holders by the action of the city in putting the sewer in without notifying the abuttors.

City Engineer Noyes replying to an interrogation of the mayor said the street had not been put in proper shape by the abuttors and therefore the city had heretofore refused to accept and lay it out.

had heretofore refused to accept and lay it out.

Geo. Clark was opposed to the sewer going in. He received no notice about it, nor did the other taxpayers.

The sewer people had blasted out some good stone in constructing the sewer, and then it was carted off despite the remonstrance of land owners. The street was a foot higher on one side than the other.

W. A. Clark had taken a good deal of care of the street.

the remonstrance of land owners.

In the street was a foot higher on one side than the other.

W. A. Clark had taken a good deal of care of the street. The west side of the street is nearly all occupied by houses. He wanted the street accepted by the city, and was willing to contribute toward that end.

E. C. Clark had built eight houses and brought $25,000 worth of taxable property to the city on the street. He had headed two petitions for its acceptance, which were refused. It was a good time for the abuttors to make the city do what it ought to have done before.

The mayor suggested getting out another petition if they wanted to talk about the acceptance of Eddy street and the aldermen would give them a hearing. Hearings were then announced on taking lands for sewer in Elmburst road, F. W. Webber for the Whiting estate appearing to urge action in the matter, land on Hunnewell avenue, Hunnewell cirrace and Moore street. No objectors appearing the hearings were promptly closed.

A Republican View of the Tariff Question.

The American Wool and Cotton Reporter, which is edited by Frank P. Bennett, one of the Republican leaders in the last Legislature, deals very frankly with the tariff question in this week's issue. It probably represents the honest views of two-thirds of the thinking, reflecting Republicans of Massachusetts. While the Reporter believes that a majority of the people are in favor of protection, "we do not believe they are in favor of the McKinley bill, and they can 'only be rallied to a support of that 'measure by appealing to their fear of free trade.' The Reporter is certainly not in favor of the sort of protection now advocated by the Republican party. Regarding wool, for example, of which it is able to speak with thorough know-

Success of Electric Cars in Newton.

The following appeared in the New York Press, which has been getting information of electric cars in the different cities:

We have two lines of electric street railway, one running between this city and Waltham, and one running from the center to the southern section of the city, just completed and to commence operation September 1.

I. Three miles of trolley road, with seventeen cars, are now in operation, and on the 1st of September three and the sunbeams greeted us, and we bowled one-half miles additional, with ten cars, will commence operation.

2. Electric railways have been in operation here since June, 1809.

3. No persons has been seriously induced the proper since June, 1809.

4. The proper from the trolley vire. There was considerable fear at first, which has disappeared. Efforts were made to have the storage battery system adopted, and the mayor and board or bearings upon the matter, but were made to have the storage battery system adopted, and the mayor and board or bearings upon the matter, but were made to have the storage battery system adopted, and the mayor and board or bearings upon the matter, but were convinced that such system is not sufficiently developed to warrant its use. Opportunity was offered the storage battery company to run its cars experitely developed to warrant its use. Opportunity was offered the storage battery company to run its cars experitely developed to electric system over horse power. The work now performed would a provided the system and would not countenance return to horse power. The Newton Street Railway has developed a travel unheard of before, carrying 1,000,00 annumber previously, but it is fair to say in this connection that the road under horse power was only operated between Waltham and the village of West New village of Newton, two miles further, with reference to danger from trolley wires it can be said that none has yet been experienced. Guard wires are placed over the trop white with the produced of the state o

The day was as perfect as a September day can be, just warm enough for comfort, riding or walking, and every member of the party thoroughly enjoyed every minute of the stay. Pleased and delighted the procession slowly wound it's way to the depot at five o'clock, and in fifteen minutes we were swiftly rolling homeward. And the Newport Outing was a success.

THE COUNCILLORSHIP FIGHT.

The caucus of the Newton delegates last Friday afternoon was not harmonious, from all reports, and it is said that the Gilman men will refuse to unite and make the vote of Newton unanimous. They make the foolish boast that already a majority of the delegates of the convention are pledged to Mr. Gilman. It is difficult to see what foundation there is to this boast, as Somerville, from which some were predicted, elected Ray-mond delegates in all but two wards, and the Somerville Journal says these are anti-Gilman and friendly to Mr.

solid for Willard Howland, and State Committee-man Berton of Belmont says that J. U. Fletcher of that town will be brought into the fight as a compromise orought into the light as a compromise delegate, and if so, he will of course have the support of Watertown, where he is very popular, and of the other towns which are always ready to com-bine against a Newton candidate. It has been claimed that Mr. Gilman had some strength in Waltham, but the Re-publican organ of that city, the Free Press, says: The majority of Newton's councillor delegates appearing to favor Mr. Leeson the courteous thing for Mr Gilman to do would seem to be to gracefully pull out.

The Waltham Tribune also gives expression to the same statement.

A writer in the Newton Journal last week recalled the many newspaper puffs Senator Gilman received early in the as showing how the whole accepted him, but it seems that the whole press of the councillor district has been so indifferent since those puffs were inserted.

The writer also claims that Mr. Gilman had more votes than Mr. Leeson, counting all the caucuses together, and that if it had been a mass caucus Mr. Gilman would have got the whole delegation. He is very careful not to give the figures, however, and it is hardly safe to predict what a mass caucus would have done. Perhaps the other wards would have made a greater effort not to be swamped by Wards One and Seven.

The Journal also claims that Mr. Gil-man's chances are better than Mr. Leeson's, but those who are not prejudiced in favor of Mr. Gilman say that he could not have been nominated even had he had the unanimous support of Newton, and they present reasons for their state-ments, which have a good deal of probability. "The feeling of sadness" the Gilman men proclaim they are suffering from is not to be wondered at, consider-ing the result of the caucuses, but they would feel better if they would give up a candidate who has no chance of success and unite in endeavoring to secure the honor for a Newton man. The city of Newton is not so much interested in the success of Mr. Gilman's ambitious hopes, as it is in having the honor of naming the councillor. That is the main ques-tion for the delegates to consider, and if any of them had rather see some other city get the honor, if their favorite can not get it, the citizens of Newton would secured the most delegates. It was not the fault of those working for Mr. Gil-man that all the caucuses did not go in his favor, they did their best, but the trouble seems to have been that there were not Gilman men enough in the were not Gilman men enough in the

THE ELEVENTH DISTRICT.

Gen. W. F. Draper of Milford was mominated as the Republican candidate For Congress from this district, by acclamation, in Boston, Monday. Mr. S. L. Powers of this city was chairman of the convention. Newton people who re-enember how bitterly the Milford politi-cians have always worked against any Newton man, whose name was suggested for office, may feel it incumbent on them to take off their coats and work for Milford's candidate, and then mossibly they may not. Gen. Draper, who was in a neighboring room, waiting to be nominated, was invited before the convention and made a good speech of on another page. Many people think acceptance, stating that he did not care for office as a personal matter, but he wanted to go to Congress because he thought the business men should be thought the business men should be more largely represented there. As a business man, and representing one of the industries especially favored by the McKinley bill, he is of course a strong believer in a high tariff. He said that he agreed with Congressman Williams in opposition to free silver; he believed in what is called the "force bill" plank of the Republican platform, and he was opposed to the repeal of tax on state banks. He said he hoped the campaign would be short and vigorous, and he hoped it would not begin before the first of October, but he should hold himself in readiness to speak wherever and whenever the committee desired. Messrs. S. L. Powers, R. H. Gardiner and W. B. Atherton will represent Newton on the district committee.

SEWER CONNECTIONS.

There has been s good deal of curiosity as to the reason for digging up the side-walks, instead of tunnelling under them in making sewer connections. The tun-nelling was tried at first but it was found that no matter how tight the earth was packed beneath the concrete, the frost would work it down and some day the concrete would fall in, making the city liable for accidents. Experience shows it is better to let the trench remain uncovered with concrete for the winter, till the frost has had a chance to settle it, and then concrete early in the spring. Those who have their sewer connections made this fall will be able to have their sidewalk put in good condition next spring, and it is hoped to have the work done wherever possible so that another year the streets will not have to be dug up again. Residents of Wards Three and Six, where the sewers are now being laid will find it much better to get all laid will find it much better to get all the connections in this fall, so that they can have good streets another summer. If residents in Wards One, Two and Seven had done this last year, they would have escaped a good deal of an-noyance this year, and travel would not have been constantly interfered with on pearly every street. It is much batter nearly every street. It is much better to have the work done when everything is about as bad as it can be, and a little more confusion and dirt would not be

This has been a great week for Repub-8th district on Monday and Mr. Wharton was not in it. Congressman Morse of stove polish fame got his third nomination, and W. L. Knox of Lawrence was chosen to oppose Congressman Stevens. Congressman Walker is again nominated in the Worcester district and will probably take off his coat as soon as the campaign warms him up. L. Dewart Apsley of Hudson, a rubber manu-facturer, will try to secure the Fitchburg district, and Henry Cabot Lodge was renominated for the fifth time. His acceptance shows that he is not as sure of the Senatorship as he would like to be. Hop. John D. Long and Mr. Crapo are being received with great favor by the more intelligent Republicans, who think that a Senator from Massachusetts should be more of a statesman than either Mr. Lodge or Mr. Barrett, and possibly now that the latter finds that he is not in the race he may turn his supporters over to Mr. Crapo or Mr. Long, unless he is provided for in some way, and is thus reconciled to Mr. Lodge.

THE Gamewell Fire Alarm and Police Signal Company has sent an official notice to the city of Newton notifying the authorities of its intention to protect the city in the event of any legal complications as a result of its patent suits with the Municipal Police Signal Company. The latter company intimated that it might enjoin the city from the further use of the Gamewell company's police signal plant in Newton, but this Gamewell people say is impossible, as the suits are not directed against the city, but against the Gamewell company. The communication has been referred to the city solicitor. The Gamewell company have appealed the cases decided against them to a higher court, and the end of the litigation is not yet reached.

THE Republican State Convention on any of them had rather see some other city get the honor, if their favorite can but get it, the citizens of Newton would like to know who such men are. The carrying off the prize. Col. Allen of honor of Newton is of very much more importance than the question of Senator minutes in length. Capt. Adams surgillman securing another office. It was prised many by the size of his vote, a fair contest, at least on the part of the minutes in length. Capt. Adams surprised many by the size of his vote, leading Mr. Breed by a long distance. Leeson men, and the Gilman men were The platform was of the usual sort, with beaten. They should now be willing to some thing new in it by way of a plan, follow the policy they advocated before the caucuses, and unite on the man who ment. The silver plank would have been much more satisfactory if it had called

THE aldermen have granted the use of City Hall, to Mr. John T. proposed improvement. It is said that some citizens are worrying lest the city should exhaust its borrowing capacity, but as the city is paying $100,000 a month on its debts, and will continue this for four months, there will be a wide margin left before the end of the present year, and the margin is not all exhausted at present.

the city authorities ought to accompany it with a map and a diagram so that they could get an idea of what their assessment will be, but perhaps a careful study of the ordinance will solve the problem.

A REPORTER from the Boston Traveller has been working up the grade crossing question, and finds an almost unanimous sentiment in favor of the Langford plan among Newton citizens. About every one he talked with said such a change would be best for the city and for all concerned.

The Mock Initiation.

Newtonville High school drill hall was filled last night with residents of the town and visitors from surrounding places, with quite a large contingent from Boston, to witness a "mock muster-in" by Prospect Lodge, a jolly crowd of Odd Fellows from Previous to the muster the Newton Highlands banjo and guitar band played several delightful selections.

COLUMBUS DAY PREPARATIONS Suggestions to the Public Schools for the Celebration of the Anniversary.

The official programme for the national school celebration of Columbus Day is now published. The first duty of each of our schools this fall, if it wishes to be in line with the other schools of America, is to begin preparations at America, is proper observance of Oct.
21, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. A few suggestions as to the first things to be done may be of

to the first things to be done may be of some value.

Teachers, the superintendent and the school board should confer, that action may be harmonious and best results attained. The proposed celebration should be explained to each school at the earliest moment. It should be so presented as to awaken enthusiasm. Interesting topics relating to Columbus and the discovery should be suggested for special investigation. Such topics might be "The Map of the World Before the Discovery," "Important Inventions and Eveitts in Europe Just Before the Discovery," "The Story of Columbus," "The Ships of Columbus," "What Columbus Expected to Find," "Geographical Growth of the United States," "Stories of South America," etc. The teacher should assign the address and the ode to those who can render them most intelligently. The flag salute and the songs should be persistently rehearsed.

Important committees of pupils should be appointed: First—A committee of invitation, whose duty is to see that the invitation, whose duty is to see that the family of each pupil receives a special invitation to the morning exercises of Oct. 21, and also when they arrive to show them seats. Second—A color guard, whose duty is (1) to see that the school has a flag and a staff in proper condition; (2) to meet the veterans as they arrive and escort them with dignity to the principal in the school house; (3) to act as aids of the principal.

An efficient adult committee of arrangements should also be constituted. This committee must see—first, that seats are prepared out of doors in hope of fair weather, and that a room is also engaged for the exercises should the day be stormy; second, that fitting decora-

But in all cases the school principal

But in all cases the school principal must make himself personally responsible for the work of each committee.

THE COLUMBUS AUTOGRAPH

The Great Explorer Handled the Sword More Skillfully Than the Pen.
There is a never ending dispute regard ing the authenticity of the various portraits of Columbus. People who claim to know deny that the picture which is to adorn the souvenir half dollar is a to adorn the souvenir half dollar is a correct presentment of the navigator's features, but whether or not the grounds on which they base their criticism are tenable will probably never be decided. Fortunately, however, the quarrel does not extend to a challenge of the verty of Columbus' autograph, a facsimile of which is given herewith.

To the ready pen wielder of the Nineteenth century the zigzag writing of the discoverer of America must seem queer indeed, but it should be remembered that in those days men wielded the sword that in those days men wielded the sword and left the gentler arts to be preserved at the hands of priests and women. Most of the famed leaders of the Fifteenth century were unlettered and found it a laborious task to sign their names to important decuments, prepaged by the portant documents prepared by the monks who followed in their trains. Columbus of course was a man of great learning, according to the standard of his age, but the use of the pen was even to him a burden, and his famous diary was probably written as a matter of duty and not of pleasure.

It is curious to note that he formed the individual letters in the same bold yet uncertain style which characterized the chirography of Queen Elizabeth. "Bess of England" could swear roundly and steer the ship of state with firmness; Columbus could bring monarchs to terms and cope with mutinous sailors, to terms and cope with mutinous sailors, but when either of them took pen in hand the unsteadiness of small practice distinguishes the manuscript or auto-graph.

More than the compass to the mariner
Wast thou, Felipa, to his dauntless soul.
Through adverse winds that threatened

Of rayless gloom, thou pointed ever to
The north star of his great ambition. He Who once has lost an Eden, or has gained
A paradise by Eve's sweet influence, Alone can know how strong a spell lies in The witchery of a woman's beckoning hand.
And thou didst draw him, tidelike, higher

Felipa, whispering the lessons learned From thy courageous father till the flood
Of his ambition burst all barriers And swept him onward to his longed for goal.

Before the jewels of a Spanish queen
Built feets to waft him on his untried way
Thou gavest thy wealth of wifely sympathy
To build the lofty purpose of his soul.
And now the centuries have eyeled by Till thou art all forgotten by the throng
That lauds the great Pathinder of the deep.
It matters not in that infinitude

If to this little planet thou couldst turn
And voyage, wraithlike, to its cloud hung

Thou wouldst not claim one wreath, but fondly turn
To lay thy tribute also at his feet.

The Dutch have a saying that "God made the ocean but Hollanders the land," and acting on this principle they are now making land out of the Zuyder Zee' This great bay covers an area of some 800 square miles, and the original plan was to inclose it all with dams and drain and pump out water. For several reasons this plan was found impracticable and it has been modified so that the dikes will extend from a noint on the coast of North Holland to the island of Wieringen and thence to the coast of Friesland. Within the area inclosed by the dikes there will remain, after as much as possible of the water has been pumped out, a few deep lakes and channels for the Austerdam canal and the river Xssel. The drained land will be about 750,000 acres, which means an addition of about 10 per cent to the habitual lands of Holland. The cost of this work is estimated at less than $100,000,000, at which outlay the returns will be very large on the investment. The acreage value of the new land will alone exceed the cost of these works, to say nothing of their indirect benefit to Holland.

Sunday morning, Sept. 11, 1892.
Phil. Iv. S. Finally, brethren whatsoever things are are true; whatsoever things are fore whatsoever things are fore whatsoever things are pure; whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue and if there be any virtue and if there be any praise—think on these things;—John Wesley used to advise his preachers to take the events of the day, to impress the lessons which it was be a ward of the search of the day, to impress the lessons which it was be a ward of the search of the day, to impress the lessons which it was be a ward of the search of the wandering of the soul of man, the other, suggest trust in that life and love which abides, when even the solid earth gives way. But if natural phenomena can teach us, much more can the phenomena of human lives. We learn much from the lives of those who have been its chosen interpreters. Even the humbles of the search of the wandering for the remains of the ward of the wandering for the search of the wandering for the remains the search of the ward of the ward restation, and renders its truest service, in moral action.

"Thy litanies sweet offices Of love and gratitude.
The your and gratitude.
The your and gratitude.
The your of doing good."

In still another way the ethical spirit shows itself in Whittier. He believes that the impulses of right and love in his own heart are not essentially different from what they are in the Heart of the Universe. The God whom he adores must have a real moral character, and must act in accordance with man's highest sense of right. What is evil in himself can not be good in God. "But nothing can be good in him, which evil is in me." He refuses to believe that God can ever punish his children in any vindictive spirit. If in man "revenge is crime," it is no less in God. All his punishments are remedial, and are designed to open the sinners eyes to the disclosure of the Father's love.

"And so be dares to bope:

"And so be dares to hope:
That suffering is not file revenge
Upon his creatures weak and frail Sent on a pathway new and strange
With feet that wander and with eyes that fail.
Watches the tender eye of love
The slow transmuting of the chain Whose links are iron below, to gold above."

whose links are iron below, to gold abore."

Whittier has also taught us, as I think no other religious teacher has, that God is revealed in and through man. He knows no gospel that is not according to man. The phenomena of nature, the decrees of councils and the words of beoks, all find their significance in man's thought and love. To him, "God's best interpreters are humble human souls."

And this thought of his makes it easy for him to enter into all that is real in the Christian thought of Jesus without committing himself or his readers to any particular theological formula. The Christian consciousness has sought to

The child says, "Oh I fear Him, And I try to love Him too But I wish He was good and gentle Kind and loving as you."

How clearly we see in this, that the heart of the child finds in the heart of the father a nobler revelation of God, than in the dismal theology he had been in the habit of preaching as "good news."

than in the dismal theology he had been in the habit of preaching as "good news."

Again, Whittier teaches us in all his poetry that the best revelation of divine things is within the soul. He needs no outward sign, no wonder in the past, no voice of external authority in the present, no records of past ages to convince him. He has, as every man has, the test which at last must decide how much of truth is contained in all these. It is because God speaks in him, that he can believe that God spake through prophets and apostles in the past; through churches and confessions now. All through his poetry there glows the grand thought of the fourth gospel, "that was the true light which lightest every man that cometh into the world." And so our true duty is to listen to the inward voice, to obey its bidding, to follow where it would lead us. I think we must all feel how much we need today a teaching like this. For it is a day of trial, when many of the outward supports of faith seem weak and wavering. It is well in such a time if we have faith in the divine life in this so strong that all other things are the mere transient manifestations of its abiding presence. It is well that we are turned from speculations about Christ, to life in Christ, from historic researches into the religious life of past ages, to the realization of the divine life within us here and now. All the storms of opinion may sweep over the soul, and all its notions about divine things vanish, but he who has been imbued with the spirit of Whittier's poetry, will remain serenely confident, because he reposes on foundations laid by God himself in the structure of his nature. With our poet, he can say:

"Othe outward hath gove, but in glory and power,"

With our poet, he can say:

"O the outward hath gone, but in glory and power.
The spirit surviveth the things of an hour, Unchanged, undecaying its entecost flame, On the heart's secret altar is burning the same. And in the poetry of Whittier God is man, and His love knows no limitation. He is not the God of one people, but of all peoples of the world. He is leading them, as a father guides his children, and all are the subject of His education, all are learning what it is possible for them to know. Whittier knows nothing of nations that know of no call from on high, to whom God has spoken no word, and in whom he has wakened no longing for himself. Wherever man seeks him, there God is found. Man's need is the only measure of God's blessing. He sings:

"All souls that struggle and aspire."

"All souls that struggle and aspire,
All hearts of prayer by thee are lit,
All the structure of the structur

For the Baptst of Wayland, the Quaker of Brown."

And because he believes in a present God, working in and through all, Whittier yearns for no past-time which seems fuller of the divine presence. The present has its glory as well. "God's love and blessing then and there are here and now and everywhere." Wherever we stand there the heavens are equally near, and wherever man aspires, there God stoops to bless him.

Whittier knows of no time nor place, where the divine love ceases to strive with human folly and sin. He can find no place in the universe for a lost soul "Father of all, he urges his strong ples,

"In life, in death, in dark and l'ght,
Ali are in God's care,
Sound the black aby-s, pierce the deep of night,
And he is there.
All which is real now, remaineth,
And faceth never.
The hand which upholds it now, sustaineth
The soul forever.

Surely a poet, who has done so much to inspire his fellow men with the vision of moral ideals, who has widened their thought of God, and given new truth and significance to the life of man, a poet who has imbued them with a faith that no accidents can weaken, and a calm corfidence here and everywhere in the "hand that guides," deserves not only the passing tribute of this hour, but a dwelling place in our hearts. It is reason for thank fulness that such songs of faith and hope and love, and high courage, have found such noble utterance on our New Eagland shores.

But if we are thankful for the poems, much more grateful should we be for the man. John Milton's demand that the life of the poet should itself be a poem, has been fulfilled in Whittier. He has borne before us "the white flower of a blameless life." Often in the study of the literature of the world, we find poems whose authors are unknown. The song remains, the singer is gone, and no memory of him remains. How many of the psalms would have an added charm and power if we only knew then hatter of the man who wrote them, and the special conditions out of which they grew. But asi it, they are voices, noble voices, it is true, and voices we love to hear, but still only voices. What they sang must lack the interpretation of what they were. Then again, many poems seem less, because those who wrote them were so much less than they. To enjoy them we must forget or ignore their origin. We console ourselves with the reflection that these treasures must often be found in earthen vessels, or else we think of them as matchless expressions of what in their best hours the poets saw, and let us hope, tried to be. But with Whittier this is not so. We know him, as we know the mountains and streams of the New England he took into his heat, and reflected in his verse, with added beauty. We know him as one who wasked with us, and upon whom for more than half a century the light of fame has shone. He went our and in among us, and what he was, and what he did all men knew. An

His life is now his noblest strain,

They revealed not merely his aspiration but his attainment, not what he wished to be and do, but what he was and did. He not only sang songs of freedom, he labored with all the might that was in him to make men free. He sang of love to God 2nd man, because he revered the one and was willing to work and sacrifice for the other. His poetry always rings with a note of triumph and confident trust, because it was impossible for him to doubt that the goodness which had triumphed in himself could ever fail. With him, the beauty of his lines was the symbol of the beauty within. His singing and his living were one. How modestly he moved among us, like Moses, not knowing that his face shone. In him there was none of the vulgar pride of authorship. A word had been given him to say, and be had said it, and he was glad that others heard it. On the only occasion I ever met him, a lady said to him, "Mr. Whittier I have read all your poems?" I shall never forget his reply: "You might have read better poetry, still I am glad you have read mine." It was the prose of what he has elsewhere said in poetry.

"Of Freedom if to me belong, Nor mighty Millon's gitted wine."

"O Freedom if to me belong,
Nor mighty Milton's gift divine,
Nor Marvell's wit and graceful sonz,
Still with a love as deep and strong As their's, I lay like them my best gifts on thy shrine."

As their's, I lay like them my best gits on thy shrine."

He was the voice of the Spirit, and so he was glad when others heard it, even from himself. Over such spirits death has no power. He is gone, but his words still remain to cheer and hearten. What he wrote has become part of the moral and spiritual inheritance of generations to come. And even when his poems have faded from the memories of men, they will live in the larger life and vision of the future. For they will have aided in the formation of that life and that vision. Our English speech is richer and finer because he moulded it to the use of his spirit, and the soil of Massachuestts is holler because his presence has blessed it. Such a life ought to have inspiration in it, to quicken us with the sense of a life into which the Father ever seeks to lead us.

"What to shuteyes has God revealed,
What hear the ears that death has sealed,
What undreamed beauty passing show,
Requites the loss of all we know.

O white soul, from that far off shore, Float some sweet song the waters o'er, Our faith confirm, our fears dispel, With the dear voice we loved so well."

Charlie Sullivan is a poor but honest Irish lad, who, while walking down Washington street, found a wallet containing checks and money to the value of several hundred dollars, Although almost destitute, he returned it to its owners, Messrs. CHARLES RIVER IS FOUL.

ONE BAD SPOT WHICH THREATENS THE HEALTH OF NEWTON. [Boston Herald.]

Boston Herald.]

The Newton board of health has issued a general circular to residents, calling attention to the immediate necessity of making connection with the sewers and covering the essential points to be observed in the event of Cholera epidemic. Many house connections remain to be made and in the event of an epidemic, the imperfect cesspool system is thought to be a menace and a possible avenue for the spread of cholera.

All the unclean places are being looked after and an effort is being made to get the city into as wholesome condition as possible.

The is one bad spot that it is claimed defies the local resources. It is the Charles river, fouled with house offal, chemicals, vegetable matter, swill and refuse.

Charles river, fouled with house offal, chemicals, vegetable matter, swill and refuse.

Between the old coal wharves and the Pearson estate there is a serious condition of things which certainly might be remedied by the proper authorities, the state board of health if that body has jurisdiction.

Since the construction of the Metropolitan Valley sewer the river front has assumed a very jagged appearance. The stone embankment walls, to facilitate the sewer constuction, were knocked down and the hugh rocks now lie upon the bed of the river and serve the purpose of catching the debris which floats down from a point extending to the Watertown dam.

Under these rocks was a large amount of refuse, and the varied collection included a dead hen, cat, corn husks and general house swill, and a bundle which was found to contain a suit of clothes in a fair state of preservation.

The clothing was discovered by Mr. Sydney Grant, well known in amateur theatrical circles. It was examined, and upon the coat and vest were what appeared to be several blood spots. Whether the suit is the explanation or a clew which may upravel a mystery, the future must determine. The find has been reported to the police, and an investigation is to be prosecuted.

Residents have been terribly annoyed by the odors of late from the river, and they are now urging the action of the health authorities in taking steps to prevent the throwing of swill and refuse into the stream.

Grand Opera House.—A grand revival of that elaborate scenic drama. "Lights of London," will next week take place at the Grand Opera House, Every preparation has been made for its presentation on a much more extensive scale than ever before, and no detail will be overlooked that will add to the production. The piece will be admirably staged. An exceptionally strong cast has been selected and a number of the parts have been entrusted to the artists who originally interpreted them. Among the scenic pictures which will be presented are Anaytage Park, the London Road, the Hawthornes, St. Giles Workhouse, The Slips, Regent's Park, the Borough on Saturday night and many others. The entire production is under the management of Mr. H. Percy Meldon. the Borough on Saturday night and many others. The entire production is under the management of Mr. H. Percy Meldon. The specialty entertainment will be found highly meritorious. Mile Nada Reyval, the electric queen, remains to win the admiration of all. Mollie Thompson, whose clever dancing and pleasing songs have placed her high in the list of vaudeville artists, is a new comer. Others who are sure to amuse in the olio are Billy Carter, the funny songs and perodies; the Russell Brothers, sketch artists, in a new burlesque; Hughes, McBride & Wallon in a lauggable sketch entirely their own and other artists who have the happy faculty of creating enjoyment for others. Matiness will be given on Thursday and Saturday. These performances begin at 1.30 o'clock sharp.

PARK THEATRE.—There is now running at the Park theatre, a merry burlesque which is probably worth a thousand of the generally so called [extravazanzas.] It is one blaze of color, brilliant and beautiful, From the splendid costume of Queen Elizabeth to the beribboned topnot of "Quoity", all is perfect harmony and perfect beauty. In nolplace gaudy, in no place neglected, in all places the marks of taste and study. Scenery, costumes, lights; and the coyly displayed charms of teminine beauty are presented in motion and in repose. Perfection in tastes, perfection in gowns, and perfection in the beauty of the wearers. Not for many years have the patrons of the Park seen such a collection of bright, sparkling mischevious, winning and dainty maidens. It is a stage production to be seen once and again and then to hunger for another sight.

the citizens of Newton, without regard to locality. The time has fully come for the permanent discontinuance of grade crossings over the B. & A. R. R.

By which of the three methods proposed shall this be effected? By depression, or elevation, or removal. The first is said to be regarded by the corporation as impracticable; the second, while feasible, is considered by many as intrinsically and seriously objectionable, particularly on the grounds that it would damage much valuable property, would be standing and conspicuous defacement to the city, and would in various ways add to, rather than diminish the inconvenience, discomfort and exposure of passengers, and of residents dwelling near the railroad line.

These, with other considerations, have brought to the front the question of defecting the road-bed from its present line to the that thay be established farther to the northward. This latter plan would seem to be easily practicable, and for the most part free from the numerous objections inseparable to the second. It is an explain which if the anglety and convenience of the travelling public, and to lessen nuisances and discomforts as pertaining to dwellers near the railroad track.

Furthermore and mest surely, the carrying out of this plan, in connection with the establishing of the park and boulevard system, which it implies, would not only add greatly to the beauty and healthfulreview of 1865. Thousands upon thousands ands have crowded the capital this week.

HOVEY AND CHACE IN TENNIS.

AT COURTS OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB. DR. DWIGHT'S NEW SYSTEM OF SCOR-ING RECEIVES A PRACTICAL TEST.

There was some good tennis out on the ourts of the Neighborhood Club in ourts of the Neighborhood Club in West Newton Monday. An enterprising committee, consisting of Messrs. Harry L. Ayer, C. L. Treveili, Henry B. Day and Edward Woods, had succeeded in getting Malcolm Chace of Providence, Fred Hovey of Newton, C. P. Hubbard of California and Robert D. Wrenn of Cambridge to battle for the amusement Newton enthusiasts before cold weather makes people forget tennis and sets them to thinking of touchdowns and goals from the field.

In the matches Monday, Fred Hovey proved an easy winner over the west-erner, C. P. Hubbard. Malcolm Chace gave Hovey a hard rub, each winning a set. The exhibition doubles between Hovey and Wrenn and Chace and Hubbard resulted in a tie, seven games all.

An extraordinary feature in this tournament is the method of scoring recommended by Dr. James scoring recommended by Dr. James Dwight. The matches, instead of being for the best three vantage sets out of five, are for the best two sets out of three, eight games won being necessary for a set, with but the last avantage set.

In the long run this system will give each player a little fairer chance, and in doing away with vantage sets until the last, does away with the possibility of dragging out a match to unlimited length.

Both Hovey and Chace (who is now a freshman at Brown University in Providence) will play in the intercollegiate tournament at New Haven in October, so their work here will give an idea of how they are playing after a summer replete with tennis victories for each.

The first match was between Hovey and Hubbard. The former seemed to play a back-court game more than is his usual custom, and Hubbard appeared at home on the smooth gravel courts, but for all that Hovey's occasional smashes and discreet places won him the first set 8-5.

Hovey's serving was safer than at his games at Newport, and he was surer of back-handed lobs from the service line.
In the afternoon Newton society poured out to see Malcolm Chace play fred Hovey. Mr. Harry L. Ayer refered. Chace by serving well and volleying safely took the first game. Hovey's net work, almost always safe against any player but Ollie Campbell, proved a winning game in the second and third, both, however, being deuce games through Chace's well directed lobs.

With the score 5 to 4, Hovey leading, Chace took a long deuce game through his safe underhand strokes from the back court. Hovey, apparently with little effort, won the 12th and 13th by cross-court places, and passing Chace prettily.

The first set went to Hovey, eight games to five, the points being:

TUESDAY'S PLAYING.

Tuesday morning the winner of the Newport All-Comers Tournament, Fred H. Hovey of Newton, played the concluding set with Malcolm G. Chace of Providence. Chase, by good all-round playing and well directed lobs defeated the intercollegiate champion, 8—3.

Hovey's friends woudered why he didn't play better, but he seemed to play indifferently, preferring to lobe rather than play his famous smashing game at the net.

Now and then Hovey placed accurately in the side line but at no time did he do his best.

Malcolm Chace met C. P. Hubbard of California. The old way of scoring was adopted in this match. Chace defeating Hubbard 6—4 and 6—3. Hubbard was clearly outplayed, and his cut strokes were wonders when safe, but not safe senough to inspire him with enough confidence. Hubbard shows improvement over his games early in the season, but is not yet in the race with Chace or Hovey.

Chace's lobs are still the winning feat.

Hovey.

Chace's lobs are still the winning features of his game, and he will undoubtedly be a dangerous man at Newport next

By bea dangerous man at Newport next year.

In the match between Hovey and Robert D. Wrenn of Cambridge. Hovey's first set 6-4, played listlessly. In the first set Wrenn got a lead of four games to one before Hovey began to play anywhere near his usual standard. Then Hovey pulled out five straight games. The second set showed each man playing a stronger game and the score ran on with amazing evenness. Wrenn finally pulled out the set, 8-6. Hovey's ccarcless work from the back line belped Wrenn to win the decisive set, 6-2.

Then Wrenn tried his luck with Hubbard, but here Wrenn proved easy prey for the tall Californian. In the first set Wrenn scored but 14 points to his opponent's 26. Better tennis was seen in the second set, but with no more favorable outcome for Wrenn. His lack of practice showed plainly. Wrenn took but four games in the second set, Hubbard getting three straight after Wrenu Eod him four to three.

Late in the afternoon, when the crowd about the court was biggest and gravest, Hovey and Wrenn batted with Chace and Hubbard in doubles. In four straight sets the two Harvard players proved easy victors over their energetic op-

With the last stroke in this match the With the last stroke in this match the tennis season, so far as crack players are concerned, in the vicinity is practically closed. The intercollegiate champion-ship tourney comes at New Haven Oct. 10. Hovey will not go to that. He promised not to last year, Wrenn will ge down to try to add another leg for fair Harvard in the ownership of the bowl. Malcolm Chace, Larned of Cornell and young Duncan W. Candler will have something to say in that matter.

Who for Legislators?

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC: I was much interested in allusion made in one of our Newton papers, to the noble character of the men who in the past have been sent to represent us in our state legislature. Citizens of Newton endorse all which was said. I represent many who also hope that this standard for integrity and uprightness will characterize those who in the future are elected to represent us in the general

As our caucuses for nominating a representative to the legislature have not yet been held, it seems fitting now to put in the plea that men be nominated for that body on whom we can rely for honesty, integrity and an unselfish rehonesty, integrity and an unselfish regard for the interests of their constituents. It is not "tricky" men whom we want at the State House, neither men whose chief qualification consists in their "smartness." We surely have in this goodly city many noble men, not aspirants for place, but men of honor, of ability, of foresight, of broad comprehension and capable of initiating and of presenting large and wise plans, who would accept the honors and duties of legislators, provided their services were sought. Such men would bring honor to their constituency.

legislators, provided their services were sought. Such men would bring honor to their constituency.

Let us beware of men who would force obnoxious measures upon the public because they have the power, as measures have been thrust upon our city without giving time for citizens to mature and to present other plans, or fairly to express their dissent. Witness for example our most unjust plan of taxation for our sewerage system. Thanks however to those members of our city government sent to represent us this year for the first time, matters of city legislation are not now rushed through as was the sewerage ordinance last year, without giving taxpayers a chance to remonstrate or to present other schemes. Such unjust measures are intolerable in city matters. Those who voted for such measures in city matters, disregarding equity to taxpayers, would not change their character if sent to represent us in state matters.

Facts revealed in our legislature last measures in city matters, disregarding equity to taxpayers, would not change their character if sent to represent us in state matters.

Facts revealed in our legislature last winter show conclusively that those elected to go there next winter should be men superior to the lobby. Appeal is hereby made to those whose business it will be to nominate our legislators for next winter, that the nominees be so pure in their business and in their social reputation, that the lobbyist will not dare approach them, or if he approaches them, that they be men of such uprightness of character that there is not the slightest question of the lobbyist's repulse, immediate and decisive.

Bills involving the question of the maintenance of the Sabbath will be likely to come up for consideration next winter; questions of temperance and of the saloon will be discussed; subjects of social purity will demand action; matters affecting the weak in society against the strong should receive attention, for instance, labor matters, railroad schemes, insurance, education, mercantile matters. In all cases, do we not wish, nay must we not have just men to represent us? Meu of such high standing in the community that there will be no question as to their position and bearing, no fear lest they shall use their power and opportunity for selfish or partisan ends. Our best citizens of whatever class feel that men of uprightness and bonor should represent up the monimation, and that only such men should be sent to represent Newton at the next session of the general court. Another thing, a man fit to represent the honor and uprightness of Newton, will not seek the place. A man who properly represents the integrity and elevation of character of the citizens of Newton will not be a man who will descend to the wiles of the demangeque or to the place of the wire-puller for the sake of securing office. Many and the best citizens of Newton say "let us send men, whether they come from the forge or the counting room, the mill or the office, let us send men to actuated several Newton boys to try experiments with a hornets' nest, located on the side of the roadway on Chapel street in the Nonantum district. Hundreds of mill hands pass by the spot every day, but in blissful ignorance of the near presence of a small army of the winged insects whose sting is an unpleasant thing to contemplate, and a sadder and more painful reality.

The boys, however, found the nest, and they have been in the habit of strring the hornets up with sticks and stones at the time the employes were departing from the mill for noon-day lunch. The boys then get out of the way and the mill hands get the benefit of their little joke in due time.

Many have been badly stung, and the attacks have continued with so much persistence and regularity that an investigation has revealed the true cause of the hornet warfare.

The boys have been given some goed advice, and a few of them a sound drubing by irate parents who have been informed of their pastime. The nest has been removed, and the mill hands are relieved from further molestation, at least for the present.—Boston Herald.

He will appear at the Hollis Street Theatre with a new comedy that is acknowledged as the one big success of the theatrical season. The management of Mr. Powers in "A Mad Burgain." Messrs. Charles J. The play is said to have more of a plot than most of its kind. There are a number of very amusing situations and incidents, and the dialogue is sparkling, bright and fresh, the action is based upon the desire of a superstitious woman to obtain a Voodoo, known as a lucky charm, which shall enable her to become suddenly wealthy. Managers Sanger and Bothner have surrounded Mr. Murray with a very strong and capable company. The stage setting will be a feature. Following "The Voodoo' comes that bright conceit, "A Nutmey Match," with piquant Annie Lewis in the leading role.

A most interesting and delightful comedy has been constructed, replete with the most amusing situations, brilliant dialogue and pointed wit. Joseph Holland in the leading role, has, it is said, one of the most difficult comedy parts seen for years, and his delightful acting has stamped him as one of the best liked comedians on the stage today. Grand Opera House.—With a desire to please the tastes of all theatre-goers the management of the Grand Opera House will next week change the style of the entertainments which have held the boards since the opening of the theatre this season. Instead of a drama a spectacular play will be given, which has been gotten up with great care by the well-known theatrical manager, Mr. M. B. Leavett. The piece has been christened "The Spider and the Fly." It is a spectacular pantomime burlesque which early in the season was organized in Europe, and since its arrival in this country has been presented only in a few of the principal cities. The expense for scenery and costumes was $30,000, and by this figure one can easily judge that scenicly the play will be magnificent. The costumes were made by Elias of London, and they are said to be wonders of taste and beauty. In the cast there are several comedians who know fully well how to entertain. Several specialties will be introduced in the burlesque instead of at the conclusion of the piece, Everybody is sure to be amused and entertained at the Grand Opera House next week. That is the way it impresses everybody in this section and, indeed, it would seem in the whole eastern section of the country. Is the lack of the usual evidences of some excitement due to a lack of interest in the questions at issue, or has the judgment of the voters been generally made up after the long discussion that has preceded? More likely, however, the elimination of the personal and sectional element from the cauvas will explain the appearance of apathy, which really covers the existence of an earnest and general weighing of public questions.—

Issued by State Banks, and what do we have.

Ist. Complete dependence on individual State legislation as to "Amount of security required, class of securities and method of deposit," giving us in all probability almost as many grades of security as there are states to legislate.

2nd. The immense amount of circulation which would be issued would require the purchase of hazdreds of millions of dollars of marketable securities now presumably hold for investment by private holders. A large and rapid increase in price must follow such a demand and we are confronted at once with a set of fictitions values as a basis upon which to figure the security for our circulation.

to refute any such failacious opinions, if they exist.

The animus behind all this proposed State Bank resurrection is perfectly apparent; it is the old hide bound prejudice against the National Banking System. Let those who believe in the Republican principles and have grace enough to speak well of a bridge that has carried them well over, rally to the support of the National Banking System, and vote for the candidates who stand for conservative banking and sound currency. Furthermore, when Harrison and Reid are handsomely elected, the duty of the party will be to urge the removal of the present one per cent.tax on National Circulation and to allow the National Banks to issue to the par value of bonds deposited, instead of 90 per cent. as now. Then whatever small profit can be legitimately made from issuing circulation will go where it belongs, to the banks who had the courage to hold Government Bonds when no one wanted them, and who were as necessary to the nation's credit as the victorious boys in blue were to its political preservation.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla does what no other blood medicine on existence can do. It searches out all the impurities in the system as accepts the substitute of the proper channels. This is why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is so pre-eminently effective as a remedy for rheumatists, effective as a remedy for rheumatists, effective as a remedy for rheumatists.

Action of Senator Gilman's Friends. September 17, 1892. Fo the Editor of the Newton Graphic:

I am sure that I can rely on your desire for justice and fair play to pubdesire for justice and fair play to publish this reply to the editorial in your issue of September 16 in regard to the councillorship fight. I went up to the councillor convention as a spectator, but after arriving there found a credential from Charlestown which would otherwise have been unused and which Ltook. I remained through the whole upon which to figure the security for our circulation.

3rd. All fluctuations or panics in the money or stock markets will affect the values of such securities and we must then depend entirely on the acumen of our fiduciary agents at the state capitals to prognosticate when to call for additional security from the depositing banks and when to sell out and place them in liquidation. In short the comproller of each state must be the keenest and most bruden of stock operators and the State Treasury Department resound to the music of the seductive "Ticket" before the new order of things can be safely put into operation.

Now, what is the fault to be found with onr present National Currency? Nothing but its scarcity. Surely no one can possibly hold to that ridiculous old theory that there is a large profit in circulation to National Banks, or that there has been for years. Statistics of the rapidity with which they have relinquished this golden (?) privilege ought to refute any such fallacious opinions, if they exist.

The animus behind all this proposed State Bank resurrection is perfectly apparent it is the able the proposed state Bank resurrection is perfectly apparent. It is the able the proposed state Bank resurrection is perfectly apparent.

A Cunarder of Fifty Years Ago.

Mr. George Robbins has shown us this week a copy of the Boston Daily Times of 1840, which records the arrival in Boston of the Cunard Steamship Brittannia with news thirty days later from Europe. She came up to the Cunard whart in East. Boston about 10 o'clock at night, and her arrival was the signal for demonstrations by salvos of artillery, music by the band, and cheering by the company assembled. The Britannia left Liverpool, July 4, and arrived in Boston, July 18. Sne brought 60 passengers. She was only about 1800 tons burthen, while the present Cunarders are of about 0,000 tons. She would look very small by the side of the present steamers. It is well at times to compare the progress which is being made in ocean travel in the past flitty years.

Every testimonial regarding Hood's Sarsa-parilla is an honest, unpurchased statement of what this medicine has actually done.

A little boy who was eating shad for his breakfast became exasperated at the bones and called out, "Mamma, why don't somebody make shad without splinters in 'em?"

As a general rule, it is best not to correct costiveness by the use of saline or drastic medicines. When a purgative is needed, the most prompt, effective, and beneficial is Ayei's Pills. Their tendency is to restore, and not weaken, the normal action of the bowels.

Two tramps had been sleeping in a wood. In the morning, one observed to the other that he was looking pale and ill. "Yes," was the reply, "I have had a fearful experience. One of the most terrible dreams I ever had in my life." "What was it about?" "Weil, I dreamt I was working."

A young lady of seventeen summers, highly educated, refined, and of prepossessing appearance, desires to form the acquaintance of some nice young man, whom she would advise, it troubled with dyspepsis, to use that great blood purifier, Sulphuru Bitters.

Samuel W. McCall of Winchester, has been nominated for Congress in opposition to Hon. John F. Andrew, and most people, Republicans and Democrats alike hope for McCall's elections. He is a brainy map, a royal good fellow, utterly devoid of any snobbish tendencies, which is more than can be said for Mr. Andrew, who is living on his father's great name and his wife's large fortune.—Haverhill Gazette.

THE FUTURE OF NEWTON.

It is not long since the favorite idea of It is not long since the favorite idea of some leading citizens was that Newton should always be a very select place, limited to a small number of people, and making no provision for growth beyond the requirements of a village. They did not care to see any public improvements, and were rather alarmed than pleased at the increase of nonulation. the increase of population.

If their views had prevailed, this city would never be more than a collection of peaceful little yillages, beautiful in their natural surroundings, and affording to those who desired it, the opportunity for leading very retired lives. But it was simply impossible that Newton should remain what they had fondly hoped. Its mearness to Boston, and its very capabilities for extension and improvement were prophecies of change.

The change has begun, and now it remains to be decided what the future shall be. Simply to increase the number of houses and to lay out new streets as they may be called for, are not enough. There must be wise plans, and broad We have our chance to avoid some of the unfortunate features which have attended the growth of other places and we can, if we will, make this city of ours a model in many respects. Under intelligent guidance we can have good roads, easy communication between different sections, pleasant parks the common property of all, good police supervision, and a health department that will prevent the growth of any conditions prejudicial to public health.

Among the movements towards secursome of the unfortunate features which

Among the movements towards secur-ing some of these desirable ends is that which contemplates a relocation of the Trailroad track and the laying out of a boulevard from Newton to Auburndale. No one who desires the future prosperity of this city can now be indifferent to a movement which promises so much good at just the right time. Whatever anyone's preferences for any other plan may have been hitherto, this new movement has been pressed to such a stage that it must be considered. If even but a part of the hopes of its friends are realized, the city will gain vastly, and will take a long stride forward towards greater prosperity.

MR. LEESON NOMINATED.

The Councillor Convention last Friday afternoon resulted in the nomination of Mr. J. R. Leeson, after seven ballots were taken. Senator Raymond was the Beading opponent of Mr. Leeson, and on the seventh ballot Mr. Leeson had a majority. Senator Gilman's friends majority. Senator Gilman's friends staid in to test the value of the promises that had been made, but after the second ballot, when he saw that his nomination was impossible, he withdrew his name so as to give the other Newton candi-date the benefit of his strength and thereby turned the scale in favor of

It was a very patriotic thing to do and the friends of Mr. Leeson appreciate it. The result of the convention insures the election of a councillor from this district who will add greatly to the reputation of that body for judicious and practical common sense in its treatment of appointments, and probably the Governor's Council will take rather more liberal wines part year than it has done in the wiews next year than it has done in the past two years under Governor Russell.

The nomination comes unsought to Mr. Leeson, as he only consented to allow his name to be used, and the rest was done by his friends. It is very gratifying to have the honor of naming the Councillor, and it is a still greater honor to be represented by such a man as Mi

ADDRESS OF COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of a number of citizens interested in the subject of separating the grade of the highways from the tracks of the Boston & Albany Railroad held on the evening of September 8, 1892, the plan of removing the railroad to a new location to obviate the necessity of elevating the tracks of the railroad, and the plan for constructing a Grand Boulevard and System of Parks between Newton and Auburndale by uniting the present roadbed of the Boston & Albany with Washington Street and the lands intervening, substantially as set forth in the Langford plan, was carefully considered and it was Voted, that the proposed plan contemplates changes and improvements of great public and financial interest to the city, and worthy of a careful and thorough examination by competent experts, and that the City Government be requested to have such examination made, and the results fully set forth, that the people may know the facts, and be enabled to act intelligently thereon.

Voted, to hold a public meeting of citizens favorable to the proposed changes, that by their presence and voice, the public interest in this subject might be shown, and an opportunity be given for proper concerted action to obtain necessary and desired information.

A committee representing the sections directly interested in the proposed changes was appointed to carry into effect the action of the meeting.

The Committee are happy to announce that, by the courtesy of the City Government the City Hall at West Newton, will be opened for a public meeting on Wednesday evening, September 28th, 1892, at 8 o'clock, at which all citizens favorable to a consideration of the changes proposed, are cordially invited to be present.

Recognizing that any plan for separating the grade between the highways and the railroad, will involve changes affecting either favorably or unfavorably, a large number of our people, and the value of a large amount of real estate, it is of vital importance that every plan presented to the City Government be fully considered by them before final action is taken, and the plan that will give to our City the largest present and future public and financial benefit be the one adopted.

Prominent speakers will fully consider the subject in the light of present knowledge, and set forth the many advantages to the railroad, to the owners of real estate, to the citizen and to the whole City, by a change of location of railroad and construction of a boulevard and park

It was a virgin world. Human life hitherto upon it had been without significance. In the Old World for thousand a special significance in the significance of sands of years civilized men had been trying experiments in social order. They had been found wanting. But here was an untouched soil that lay ready for a new experiment in civilization. All things were ready. New forces had come to light full of overturning power in the Old World. In forces had come to light full of over-turning power in the Old World. In the New World they were to work to-gether with a mighty harmony. It was for Columbus, propelled by this fresh life, to reveal the land where these new forces were to be given space for de-velopment, and where the awaited trial of the new civilization was to be made. of the new civilization was to be made.

Today we reach our most memorable illestone. We look backward and we Backward we see the first mustering of modern ideas; their long conflict with Old World theories, which were also transported hither. We see stalwart transported hither. We see stalwart men and brave women one moment on the shore, then disappearing in dim forests. We hear the ax. We see the flame of burning cabins and hear the cry of the savage. We see the never ceasing wagon trains always toiling westward. We behold log cabins becoming villages, then cities. We watch the growth of institutions out of little beginnings-schools becoming an educational system; meeting houses leading into organic Christianity; town meetings growing to political movements; county discussions developing federal governments.

We see hardy men with intense con-

We see hardy men with intense con-victions grappling, struggling, often amid battle smoke, and some idea char-acteristic of the New World always triumphing. We see settlements knit-ting together into a nation with single-ness of purpose. We note the birth of the modern system of industry and com-merce and its striking forth into me the modern system of industry and commerce and its striking forth into undreamed of wealth, making the millions members one of another as sentiment could never bind. And under it all, and through it all, we fasten on certain principles ever operating and regnant—the leadership of manhood: equal rights for every soul: universal enlightenment as the source of progress. These last are the principles that have shaped America: these principles are the true Americanism.

We look forward. We are conscious we are in a period of transition. Ideas in education, in 'political economy, in we are in a period of transition. Ideas in education, in 'political economy, in social science are undergoing revisions. There is a large uncertainty about the outcome. But faith in the underlying principles of Americanism and in God's destiny for the republic makes a firm ground of hope. On the vic-torious results of the completed centuries the principles of Americanism will build our fifth century. Its material progress is beyond our conception, but we may be sure that in the social relations of men with men the most triumphant gains are to be expected. America's fourth century has been glorious; America's fifth century must be made happy. One institution more than another has wrought out the achievement of the rest and is today most threat for the past, and is today most trusted for the future. Our fathers in their wisdom knew that the foundations of liberty raternity and equality must be universal education. The free school therefore was conceived the cornerstone of the republic. Washington and Jefferson recognized that the education of citizens is not the prerogative of church conference of the primary interests that while or of other private interest; that while religious training belongs to the church, and while technical and higher culture may be given by private institutions, may be given by private institutions, the training of citizens in the common knowledge and the common duties of citizenship belongs irrevocably to the

in all the schools of the United States

A uniform programme for every school in America, to be used on Columbus Day simultaneously with the dedicatory exercises of the World's Columbian exexercises of the world's Columbian ex-position grounds in Chicago, will give an impressive unity to the popular cele-bration. Accordingly, when the super-intendents of education last February accepted the plan for this national pub-lic school celebration, they instructed their executive committee to prepare an official programme of exercises for the day, uniform for every school.

The following programme has been prepared by the committee:

prepared by the committee:

The schools should assemble at 9 a. m. In their various rooms. At 9:30 the detail of veterans is expected to arrive. It is to be net at the entrance of the yard by the color guard of pupils, escented with dignity to the building and presented to the principal. The principal then gives the signal and the several teachers conduct their pupils to the yard, to drumbeat or other music, and arrange them in hollow square about the flag, the veterans and color guard taking places by the flag itself. The master of ceremonies then gives the command, "Attention," and begins the exercises by reading the proclamation.

As the flag reaches the masthead the veterans will lead the assemblage in "Three Cheers for 'Old Glory."

3. SALUTE TO THE FLAG. By the Pupils. At a signal from the principal the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military saluto-right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead and close to it. Standing thus all repeat to gether slowly. "I pledge allegiance to my flag and the republic for which it stands; one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." At the words "to my flag" the right hand is extended gracefully, palm upward, toward the flag, and remains in this gesture till the end of the affirmation, whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing, as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing "America"—"My country. "its of thee." 3. SALUTE TO THE FLAG. By the Pupils.

4. ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF GOD. Prayer or Scripture.

Forgotten Columbus Monument.

It is a mistake to suppose that there was, up to a short time ago, no monument to Columbus in the United States. There is a monumental shaft in Baltimore. It is obscurely placed and is inscribed "Chris. Columbus." It dates from 1784. It was arcted by the Franch from 1784. It was erected by the French

"God helping me," cried Columbus, "though fair or foul the breeze, I will sail and sail till I find the land beyond the western seas!" So an eagle might leave its eyric, bent, though the blue should bar, To fold its wings on the loftiest peak of an undiscovered star! And into the vast and void abyss he followed the setting sun: Nor gulfs nor gales could fright his sails till the wondrous quest was done. But Oh, the weary vigils, the murmuring, torturing days, Till the Pinta's gun, and the shout of "Land!" set the black night ablaze! Till the shore lay fair as Paradise in morning's balm and gold.

And a world was won from the conquered deep, and the tale of the ages told! Uplift the starry Banner! The best age is begun!
We are the heirs of the mariners whose voyage that morn was done.
Measureless lands Columbus gave and rivers through zones that roll, But his rarest, noblest bounty was a New World for the Soul!
For he sailed from the Past with its stifling walls, to the Future's open sky.
And the ghosts of gloom and fear were laid as the breath of heaven went by; And the pedant's pride and the lordling's scorn were lost, in that vital air,
As fogs are lost when sun and wind sweep ocean blue and bare;
And Freedom and larger Knowledge dawned clear, the sky to span, The birthright, not of priest or king, but of every child of man! Uplift the New World's Banner to greet the exultant sun! Let its rosy gleams still follow his beams as swift to west they run, Till the wide air rings with shout and hymn to welcome it shining high, And our eagle from lone Katahdin to Shasta's snow can fly In the light of its stars as fold on fold is flung to the autumn skyl Uplift it, Youths and Maidens, with songs and loving cheers; Through triumphs, raptures, it has waved, through agonies and tears. Columbia looks from sea to sea and thrills with joy to know Her myriad sons, as one, would leap to shield it from a foel And you who soon will be the State, and shape each great decree, Oh, vow to live and die for it, if glorious death must be! The brave of all the centuries gone this starry Flag have wrought; In dungeons dim, on gory fields, its light and peace were bought; And you who front the future—whose days our dreams fulfill— On Liberty's immortal height, oh, plant it firmer still! For it floats for broadest learning; for the soul's supreme release; For law disdaining license; for righteousness and peace; For valor born of justice, and its amplest scope and plan Makes a queen of every woman, a king of every man!
While forever, like Columbus, o'er Truth's unfathoused main
It pilots to the hidden isles, a grander realm to gain. Ah! what a mighty trust is ours, the noblest ever sung, To keep this Banner spotless its kindred stars among! Our fleets may throng the oceans—our forts the headlands crown— Our mines their treasures lavish for mint and mart and town— Rich fields and flocks and busy looms bring plenty, far and wide And statelier temples deck the land than Rome's or Athens' pride-And science dare the mysteries of earth and wave and sky— Till none with us in splendor and strength and skill can vie; Yet, should we reckon Liberty and Manhood less than these, And slight the right of the humblest between our circling seas Should we be false to our sacred past, our fathers' God forgetting, This Banner would lose its luster, our sun be nigh his setting! But the dawn will sooner forget the east, the tides their ebb and flow. Than you forget our radiant Flag and its matchless gifts forego!
Nay! you will keep it high-advanced with ever brightening sway-The Banner whose light betokens the Lord's diviner day-Leading the nations gloriously in Freedom's holy way!

No cloud on the field of azure—no stain on the rosy bars-God bless you, Youths and Maidens, as you guard the Stripes and Stars! EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

COLUMBUS DAY.

CTOBER 21 will be a gala day from one end to the other of the United States, and it is but prop-er that it should be so, for is it not Columbus Day, Columbus Day, and will it not commemorate the discovery of a world which in the comparatively short time of four centuries has emerged from the blackness of the forest and the ignorance of the savage into the blazing sun of prosperity and the noontide of intelligence. Now that the official programme for

Now that the official programme for the uniform popular celebration of Co-lumbus Day has been published, the question of the participation by this community in the national exercises be-comes a live issue.

It goes without saying that the people of this locality will not be backward in evidencing their particisism by an appro-evidencing their patriotism by an appro-priate celebration of the memorable day, and a few suggestions as to the best method of executing this com-mendable design may not be amiss at this time. In the first place, it should be borne in mind that it is intended that the school mind that it is intended that the school children should be the principal participants in the exercises. The pupils are to be at their places in school at 9 o'clock as usual. It is desirable that business be entirely suspended so that the relatives of the pupils may also be present. Printed programmes should be provided when possible, and the exercises will of course he subject to the be provided when possible, and the exercises will of course be subject to the limitations of the scholars, but everything which may be done should tend to the central ideas of Columbus' achievement and the remarkable progress of the country under the impetus of education. Appropriate patriotic decorporation.

ress of the country under the impetus of education. Appropriate patriotic deco-rations are necessary, and allegorical tableaux will add greatly to the effect-iveness and enjoyment of the exercises. Music is also desirable. In the afternoon comes the citizens' celebration, but, as in the morning ex-ercises, the school children should take the most prominent part. Of course in the country districts this will not be the the most prominent part. Of course in the country districts this will not be the case, and the afternoon should be de-voted to games for the young people and social gatherings for their elders, though every house should be decorated with the national colors. In the towns the afternoon should be devoted to some sort consul general, De Amamour, who, with some hundred or more French officers and soldiers, remained in Baltimore after the end of the Revolutionary war.

the civic and military organizations

the civic and military organizations should be invited to participate.

A review of school children after they have reached the reviewing stand and saluted the flag will add much to the "life and color" of the scene. A mass meeting of the citizens should follow during the day, when the best orators of the locality, and the most eloquent of the declaimers among the children—say one from each school—might deliver addresses appropriate to the occasion. The topics of these speeches will readily suggest themselves, but it must be borne in mind that anything relating to Columbus will be more interesting than anything else on such an occasion. The flag salute, the ode and the patriotic songs should be executed by the children without a hitch, and for this reason a great deal of preliminary work will have to be done by them.

Upon the school teachers will devolve the greatest portion of this labor. Each teacher should at once, if it has not al-

Upon the school teachers will devolve the greatest portion of this labor. Each teacher should at once, if it has not al-ready been done, present the matter of the celebration of Columbus Day to his pupils, and it should be laid before the young people in such a manner that each will be auxious to contribute as much as possible to the success of the affair. Enthusiasm is what is wanted and needed, for without it failure must affair. Enthusiasm is what is wanted and needed, for without it failure must result. Let each teacher select commit-tees on reception, on decorations, on ex-ercises, on printing, on newspapers, on arrangements and on finance. The principal must be actually if not nom-inally the directing spirit of each com-mittee.

At the morning exercises at the schools At the morning exercises at the schools the veterans should have charge of the flag and should also act as guards of honor to the schools on the march to the reviewing stand. The peculiar appropriateness of the veterans being the special patrons of the school celebration is ap parent. Money and the active co-opera-tion of the citizens at large are absolute-ly necessary to the success of the cele-bration, and these should and probably will be promptly forthcoming.

Only the general outlines of exercises suggested in the official programme are here given. These may be enlarged or contracted to conform to the wishes and possibilities of the celebrants.

The Wife of Columbus.

What about Mrs. Columbus? She ought to figure somehow in the celebration, although there is no picture of her extant. She was a Miss Palestrello, of Lisbon, and became the wife of Columbus Col bus in 1470. Her father was a navigator, and from old Palestrello's charts Colum-bus got his first ideas about a western passage to the Indies.

Is welcome abroad once more, and abroad he may go. As long as Lard was a requisite in every kitchen, the Great American Hog was highly esteemed at home; but now that modern science has introduced

The reason for this is threefold. COTTOLENE is cleaner, healthier and much more economical. A trial has convinced thousands as to this. It will convince any "convincable" person. Will you be convinced?

In wet weather it is usual for the Australian aborigine to carry in the hand, beneath the kangaroo skin, a piece of smoldering wood, which compensates the bearer in some sort for the want of a flannel waistcoat, and enables him to light a fire at a moment's notice.

One of our men had also a plan on cold nights of lying down, rolled up in his furs, upon the ashes of a raked out fire. He explained to my husband that the advantage of thus going to bed was twofold, being no less good for warmth than for concealment, especially when passing the night in a strange place, where the keeping up of a fire after dark might attract the notice of unfriendly natives.

Each tribe possesses a territory of its own, and each family of the tribe has its own especial tract of land within that territory. Here a man can light his fire and build his hut without fear his fire and build his hut without fear of molestation. It is in fact his pater-nal estate, so that the word "fire" con-veys to an Australian the same mean-ing of fatherland or birthplace as the word "hearth" conveys to a European, and is used by the aborigines in the same sense.—Mrs. Millett.

Property Among Ants and Bees.

The collective system of property must have lasted among ants and bees must have lasted among ants and bees for many thousands of years, for, apart from cases of demoralization such as may, for example, be produced among bees by giving them a taste for drunkenness, these intelligent insects show the most absolute deference and devotion to social property. Their primitive selfshness has broadened out into a collective or patriotic egoism. But these very social species, with their more than Christian charity, have not reached this high degree of civilization at one bound. In the ant and bee worlds, as in our own, there are savages. There are still at the present time certain species of ants ignorant of the division of labor carried so far among their civilized congeners.—"Property: Its Origin and Development."

Sportive Lambs.

A flock of ewes and lambs were once observed in adjoining fields, separated by a fence with several gaps in it. "F1-low my leader" was the game most in favor with this flock, the biggest lamb leading around the field and then jumping the gap, with all the others following in single file. Any lamb that took the leap unusually well would give two or three more enthusiastic jumps out of sheer exuberant happiness when it sheer exuberant happiness when it reached the other side. Fawns played a sort of cross touch from one side to the other, the "touch" in each case being by the nose.—London Tit-Bits.

The Colors of Amber.

Amber has a wonderful variety of colors. Some of it is as clear as crystal, some as yellow as honey, some light blue and again a transparent green. Then it is found as white as snow, the color of cream, and often many of these tints are blended in one piece. There is a popular notion to the effect that amber has curative qualities for such ailments as croup and sore throat, and many thousand necklaces of it are sold annually for that purpose.—Interview in Washington Star.

In Kentucky the public school teachers are not paid a fixed salary, but receive so much for each pupil. This plan has one good effect, that of stimulating teachers to secure scholars and thus ex-tend the benefits of education, but some have been found making false returns.

Bales and Buffalo Burgs

Datsies and Buffalo Bugs

A queer thing was told us the other day by a lady whose new house suddenly became invested with buffalo bugs, which became invested with buffalo bugs, which eat every thing in their path. A friend told her that the buffalo bug's birthplace is found in the golden cup of the lovely common field daisy that everybody loves. Determined to investigate the matter she looked into several daisy cups growing in the field, and, sure enough, there she found in several daisies the detested insect comfortably taking its ease. Since the Oscar Wilde fashion of bringing daisies into the house for decoration is common, if the daisy theory is true it is worth knowing, for in that case no daisies, no buffalo bugs.

Marriage by Wire.

From the Tombstone (Ariz.) Prospector. William Hardie of Fort Bowie and Miss Hattie Quinn were married by telegragh a few days ago. The would-be bride arrived at Bowie and naturally being anxious to have the knot tied at the time set, the contracting parties went forth to secure the services of some one authorized to perform such a ceremony. They were startled to find that there was no one at the post who could act. Their minds were soon relieved by the telegraph operator telling them they could be married by telegraph and offering to perfect the arrangements, which offer, of course, was accepted. Rev. Brant C. Hammond, post chaplain of Fort Apache, 275 miles away, performed the ceremony. The operators at San Carlos, 225 miles, and Cooney's ranch, 300 miles away, acted as witnesses. All the customary questions were asked and answered over the wire. being anxious to have the knot tied at Strictly speaking, the Thousand Islands extend from Cape Vincent to Ogdensburg, a distance of 70 miles, but whenever that term is used in reference to the watering resort it means only that portion of the river extending from Clayton to Alexandria, a stretch of 11 miles, which embraces all the principal resorts. Alexandria Bay, built upon a rocky and picturesque surface, is the main point of interest and the most fashionable resort on the river.

The following story is told of the late Charles Jamrach, the naturalist and dealer in wild animals in England. When a friend condoled with him on the loss of his second wife, the naturalist answered with a heavy sight: "Yes, yes. As you say, she was a good wife. But," he added, as if he felt compelled to speak the whole truth, "she never took kindly to the animals. Why, even in winter she wouldn't let the snakes sleep under the bed!"

—At a special meeting of the Brookline board of health was held last week, and the prevalence of malaria in the Chestnut Hill district was discussed, says the Chronicle. Dr. Chase, the agent of the board, reported many cases on Hammond, Boylston and Health streets in the district named. He recommended that if practicable a joint survey by Brookline and Newton be made with reference to draining the rotten lands about Hammond Pond. The filling in of a number of stagnant pools in the same neighborhood was also recommended. While the disease has thus far been generally of a mild type and amenable to treatment, it is liable at any time to assume alarming features, both in strength and number of persons attacked. This continuitatory steps so or the artist has take of complaint, and Engineer French is preparing plans for the drainage of that district.

Mrs. E. H. Greenwood.

-A careless nursery maid left a baby carriage and its infant occupant on the sidewalk on Lincoln street, Wednesday afternoon, while she crossed the road to converse with a friend. The sidewalk slopes on an easy grade, and the carriage gathered sufficient headway from its own momentum to start down hill, the speed gradually increasing, until it was moving at a fairly rapid rate. An electric car was coming down Lincoln street, and a collision seemed inevitable. It was impossible for the car to slow up before reaching the carriage, and the motorman, with cool judgment, put on full speed, and succeeded in almost clearing it, just grazing the. little vehicle and fortunately doing no damage.

BOLD SAFE ROBBERY.

"SIGN" GAME WORKED SUCCESSFULLY AT THE HIGHLAND POSTOFFICE.

The Newton Highlands postoffice was the scene of a bold safe robbery Wednes-day morning.

Two unknown men were the principals day morning.

Two unknown men were the principals in the affair, and were evidently no noylees, as they successfully worked what is known as the "sign bluft," a scheme which has been tried so frequently that the police and public have become pretty familiar with the details.

One of the men engaged Postmaster Nash in conversation, pretending to be an agent looking after the advertising interests of a New York house.

He said that he wanted to put up a sign in the postoffice, and induced Mr. Nash to consent to the plan.

In order to determine the location of the sign, Mr. Nash came out behind the partition separating the business office from the public apartment, leaving the door affording ingress and egress for the postoffice officials partly open.

As soon as the postmaster and the stranger had left the coast clear, having walked out well toward the front of the public apartment, another man who was in the game slipped through the door into the business office and rifled the safe.

He secured a leather wallet containing $150, and two packages of stamps wrapped in manilla paper, each representing a value of $200. The stamps, however, have been since recovered, the third dropping them in his hasty flight.

the doorway with the botty when he was seen by Postmaster Nash who immediately gave the alarm, and the police were promptly notified and were soon on the scene—not in time, however, to prevent the fellow, from making their escape, albert of the state of a citizen, they pursued opposite directions, one going toward Newtonville and the other taking the road to Oak Hill.

The man who robbed the safe was handsomely dressed in a dark suit, and wore a light spring overcost of a fashionable cut. He was a dark complexioned man, and wore black side whiskers and a moustache.

The robbery has occasioned great excitement in the Hichlands, and a large crowd assembled at the postoffice soon after the news of the affair had spread about.

—Special Officer George E. Wragg of Needham has identified Frank Clark, the man arrested on Friday by Deputy Sheriff Farrell of Randolph for stealing hens from Randolph, as Frank Deihl, formerly of Newton, whom he wanted for larceny of hens from Needham. Knowing that the Newton police wanted the same man for the same kind of work, Wragg saw City Marshal Richardson, who detailed Officer Fletcher to work on the case with Wragg. The officers think they can fix at least nine breaks on Clark in Newton and Needham. They also find that he has worked at various places under the names of Clark, Holanger, Deihl and Daley. That part of Newton known as Oak Hill, has been his stamping ground for the last three years. Clark is about 2! years old, and has worked in Newton on and off the last three years.

—The Sultan City Journal of Washington, under the date of Sept. 17th, has the following, which will be of interest to many Newton readers: Dr. Titus, who has charge of the Great Northern hospital at ciranite, was in town the beginning of the week. He will close up the hospital in a few weeks, railroad work being so far advanced as to make it unnecessary, and will locate in Seattle where he will practice his profession. Residents and railroaders alike will regret the doctor's departure, as his skill as a physician and qualities as a man have won the regard of all whom he he has come in contact. This community has reason to be especially grateful to Dr. Titus, as his skill and watchful care have twice prevented smail-pox from becoming epidemic in the railroad construction camps, two cases having been under his care at Grantle within three months.

CITY HALL FILLED TO ITS UTMOST CAPACITY

CAPACITY.

City Hall was filled Wednesday night to its utmost capacity, and the crowd overflowed even into the entrance hall and down the stairs, so great was the interest of citizens in the scheme of moving the railroad tracks, where they will not be such a nuisance as they would be if elevated in their present location, and also to provide a system of boulevards on the site of the present tracks, connecting all the centres of population on the North side.

All who read the papers are familiar on the site of the present tracks, connecting all the centres of population on the North side.

All who read the papers are familiar with the outline of the scheme, which is to move the tracks a short distance north of their present location, putting the Newton depot in Nonantum Square, the Newton depot in Nonantum Square, the Newton of the tracks of the tracks of the tracks of the tracks of the tracks, the West Newton north of City Hall, and the tracks joining the old road-bed at the Auburn-dale depot.

This would bring a large section south of the tracks, and the city would gain largely from the rise in values.

All parts of the city were represented in the audience and the interest was certainly extraordinary.

Among those seated upon the platform were Mr. S. L. Powers, Rev. George W. Shinn, D. D., Rev. Francis Hornbrook, Rev. John H. Hamilton, D. D. Otis E. Huut, M. D., Andrew S. March, E. B. Haskell, Francis A. Dewson, Austin R. Mitchell, Alderman Wilson, Nathaniel T. Allen, James T. Allen, George Frost, John O. Smith, J. Edward Hollis, Thomas B. Fitz, Alderman Sheppard, Alderman Churchill, D. Waldo Stearns, M. D. H. B. Parker, James T. Ballanty delenty F. King, A. F. Luke, A. T. Sylvester, John B. Goodrich, Chester H. Graves, J. T. The Brighton Market National Bank, a large portion of the stock of which is held by people of small means in Brighton and Newton, has just had a narrow escape over which the stockholders are congratuating themselves. It seems there is a syndicate which the stockholders are congratuating themselves. It seems there is a syndicate after banks it their business to go about after banks it their business to go about after banks then put their own men in omit dividends and depress the value of the stock. They then put their own men in omit dividends and depress the value of the stock till the small stockholders are frightened and willing to sell out at low price, when the syndicate buys up all the stock at a fraction of fits value, and then the bank resumes its dividends and the syndicate-saakes money. There were two-large blocks of the Brighton bank coming on the market and the syndicate was planning to get them, when the directors discovered their plans, bought up the stock and the syndicate has lost its prospective profits. It does not seem to be exactly an honorable way of making money, but it seems to be within the pale of the law.

George M. Fiske.

Mr. Samuel L. Powers presided, and said:

"The question before us to-night is a public not a private one. It is the most important question coming up for discussion in the city of Newton in the last half century, because it affects not only this generation but that coming after us.

"The Newton of tomorrow is not to be the Newton of today. In 10 years Newton has increased in population one-half. In that time there have also been introduced its present system of parks, electric lights, electric railways, its postal delivery and its sewerage system. This progress and development continuing during the next 30 years will increase our opulation to something like 100,000.
"It therefore behooves us now to make such improvements as we cannot make thereafter. One of these improvements is certainly the abolishment of grade crossings of the Boston & Albany railrow methods have been presented to.

"During the discussion a plan was preposed, novel and unique—to remove the tracks to some point on the nor herly side, and to utilize the roadbed of the main line between Newton and Auburndale in connection with Washington street and intervening space as a boulevard for public travel.

"When first proposed, it had not over a score of adherents, out I think the plannot only possible, but may result in great benefit, not only now, but in the future."

Alfred D. Chandler of Brockline was then introduced. He said:

"I am here in response to your invitation to show how far municipal development on broad lines pays, and to show that it pays best on broad lines. I am not here in a controversial spirit. I shall leave details of any particular scheme to others. I am merely here to impart information to enable you to pass with more confidence upon some of the very important matters now pending regarding the Garden city of the state.

committee has under consideration a plan for relieving the matron of some of her many burdens. It is thought a physician may be secured who will serve as a superintendent, having charge of several matters pertaining to the medical part of the service.

The committee was requested to furnish a preliminary plan for a Nurser's Homewith an estimate of the cost, as it is hoped subscriptions may be obtained to defray the expense of this much needed building, there being at present some twenty pupils who for lack of it are obliged to lodge as best they can in the limited accommodations of the hospital.

The president stated that more cases had been cared for this summer than in any other, and there were more pupil nurses than ever before. He had received several letters containing contributions, one gift of $50 had been accompanied by the statement that it was in consequence of the very favorable impression made upon the donor by a visit to the hospital.

The trustees were reminded of the urgent necessity of securing larger contributions, especially upon Hospital Sunday, to defray the increased expenses of maintenance occasioned by the much greater number of patients treated this year over any previous year.

Lawrence was appointed a committee to draft resolutions appreciative of the services rendered by Mrs. L. F. Thayer, a trustee, who has died since the last meeting.

TELEPHONE CO. HEARING.

The hour for hearing of the N. E. Tele-The nour for nearing of the N. E. felephone and Telegraph Co. for leave to locate poles on Forest avenue, Alpine, Centre and other streets; the remonstrants were first heard. Mr. W. B.
Young of Lake avenue presenting a remonstrance from nearly every resident on that street against the location of poles upon it. Alderman Hyde presentde remonstrance from other residents.
Hon. J. F. C. Hyde made an earnest protest against disfiguring the street on which he lived, by the placing of what he described as a nuisance in front of his house. Don't want telephone and don't want the poles and wires. They cut wany fine trees without regard to the appearance of the street, and the poles are unsightly and should not be allowed.
Mr. A. F. Hayward objected to any poles being placed near his estate.
Thought the lines already granted were ample for all needs.
Mr. Moses G. Crane did not want poles on Lake avenue, although he said the telephone was almost a necessity, and to have it poles and wires must be placed somewhere. We are all willing they should be placed on other streets than those upon which we live, but do not want them upon our street. Thought the wires could and should be placed under ground. Mr. Frank Edmands of Lake avenue also spoke in remonstrance.
Mr. S. L. Powers in behalf of the Telephone Co. said the abuttors did not own the streets. These were owned by the city, and the city has a right to use them for public travel and other matters of public necessity, among which are the necessary appliances for telephone service. By state law all injury which may be to abuttors c in be recovered from the Telephone Co., and the board of aldermen shall assess the amount of damages.
The company have just located an exchange at Newton Highlands for the convenience of patrons on that side of terviceable.
Mr. Allbury for the Telephone Co. explained the reason of locating the exchange at the Highlands. The phone and Telegraph Co. for leave to locate poles on Forest avenue, Alpine,

We take it for granted that you will readily see through the smoke raised by the petty personalities of the Gamewell circular and discover the real issue which is based upon the fact that we have brought suit against the Gamewell company for infringement of patents controlled by us.

The circular letter of the Gamewell company having been referred to the city solicitor, we respectfully ask that this communication may be also referred to him in order that he may get more detailed and specific information regarding these patents, which we shall be glad to give him.

The courts will decide the case and not the Gamewell company, and adroitly written circulars will not relieve them of responsibility nor secure to cities the right to use apparatus sold to them by a concern which has no right to do so.

The advice of the Gamewell company not to take any notice of these pending suits on the ground that they are of no uir part, does not meet the issue.

We have neither time nor inclination to take any "retaliatory" measures against the Gamewell company, however much provocation we may have for so doing. Our object is simply to manufacture and sell the best fire alarm apparatus in the country, and conduct our business in an honorable and legitimate manner. This we shall continue to do, asking the properly constituted legal tribunals to protect us whenever our rights are invaded by those who attempt to sell property covered by us, patents owned or controlled by us.

THE LANGFORD PLAN.

Fram 1885 to 1890 about 2000 a month. From 1890 to 1900 in same ratio it should be 4000 a month. 1000 a week. This would equal the increase tow claimed by Chicago, so that before the end of this century this circle of some 16 miles in diameter will equal the population of the present city of Chicago.

THE VALUATION in 1880 was $875,000,000; 1891, $1,180,000,000; a growth in 10 years of assessed property of some $304,000,000.

The speaker contrasted the valuations of property in Chicago with that of the 16 outlying municipalities, to the advantage of the latter.

In 10 years the increase in property valuation in Boston proper, was only 28 per cent. In Cambridge, 38 per cent. Med. ford, 38 1-2; Newton, 42; Somerville, 149 years the increase in property valuation in Boston proper, was only 28 per cent. In Cambridge, 38 per cent. Med. ford, 38 1-2; Newton, 42; Somerville, 1940 years the increased its valuation to the contrast of the property with the last 10 years the increased its valuation to $50,000,000, and 10 years more should make it $100,000,000.

The West End railway shows an increase of 20,000 passengers per month during the present year.

When business doubles every 10 years the people are under an imperious obligation to improve the transportation facilities.

Plans were shown of the city of Washington, with its thoroughfares of 100 feet and over in width, and the effect upon its property was clearly but concisely shown, as was also Philadelphia, Chicago, New York city and their boulevards and figures showing the immense increase in the valuation of its real estate. The power of improved streets to offer increased facilities for transportation was also clearly Phoven By Figures.

"If you can," said Mr. Chandler, "by the or transportation was also clearly

PROVEN BY FIGURES.

"If you can," said Mr. Chandler, "by the plan proposed have a broad avenue from Newton to Auburndale, with special provisions made in its centre for electric roads and tree planting, that should be your plan for the requirements of the present age." [Applause.]

Rev. Dr. Shinn spoke in behalf of the proposed improvements on the cround of moral and religious growth, as well as beauty being thereby promoted.

The citizens now have a singular opportunity to decide whether they will be injured permanently by a wall through the heart of the city, or whether the tracks shall be moved to one side where the grades are easy, adding nothing to the expense and more easily accessible to the manufacturing portion of the city, giving us a chance to beautify one of the most beautiful cities in the country. The heart of the city will be left open for a magnificent and beautiful boulevard. This, as was the Cottage Hospital, is an experiment perhaps, some say it never has been known before; but now is the time for Newton to distinguish herself by doing it.

Mr. Francis A. Dewson of Newtonville believed thoroughly in the Langford plan as the best yet advanced. A boulevard in place of the railroad would greatly enhance the value of property and thereby increase the real estate valuation, but perhaps not obviate an increased tax rate. The fact that elevation of the tracks above the present roadbed would place upon all the burden of climbing fifteen or twenty steps to reach the cars is a decided objection, and walking further to the depot would be much less objectionable. Our children and grandchildren should be though of and personal considerations should necessiate

Every person interested in the subject of the Tariff, is cordially invited to take part in the discussions carried on in this column. Respectful consideration will be given to inquiries, criticisms, and communications of every kinde whether coming from Tariff Reformers Fre, Traders of High Protectionists. Address Secretary of the Tariff Reform Club, Newton Centre. Mass.

Tell the Truth to the Workingman!

The workingman is beginning to ask questions. You who believe in tariffreform have only to tell him the truth. Your opponents have got to conceal the truth from him. You have the advantige.

If the workingman asks you whether wages are not lower in England, where wages are not lower in England, where there is no protective tariff, then they are here, tell him they are lower there. Tell him also that the cost of living is lower, and that aday's work there is about two-thirds of a day's work here. Tell him also that wages in 4-er many, where there is a protective tariff, are still lower, far lower, than in England. Point out to him that if these emigrants keep on coming, the rate of wages grants keep on coming, the rate of wages will go down here as it has gone down in Europe.

Point out to him, furthermore, that if a heavy tax is levied on foreign raw materials and foreign manufactures, while no tax is levied on foreign labor, the American workingman stands a poor chance of getting employment.

If any man tells you that he honestly thinks that England will be benefitted thinks that England will be benefited by a reduction of the American tariff, ask him "How? Why? and Wherefore?" England lives on her foreign trade: if we induce foreigners to trade with us, we take her business away. England has most of the immense trade of the South American States. We ought to have it. We could have it, if we would let the South Americans sell their goods in our market.

we would let the South Americans sell their goods in our market.

If the tariff permitted South America to send her goods here, we could export our goods in return, and double the foreign market for American manufactures. She ships raw materials—rubber, coffee, hides, etc. And buys manufactures—machinery, clothing, tools, furniture. She deals with England, because our tariff shuts her out.

You will not find it hard to show that "trusts"—combinations of manufacturers to raise the price of goods to consumers—are not "private affairs, with which neither President Cleveland nor any private citizen has any particular right to interfere."

The Tariff and Wages.

Why are wages higher in the United States than Europe? Whether they are or not the tariff has nothing to do with t.em.

Manufactured products are made dearer by the tariff because similar foreign products are excluded from the markets, and competition is suppressed. But there is free trade in labor. It is true there is a law forbidding the im-But there is free trade in labor. It is true there is a law forbidding the importation of labor, which is violated, but there is no law of this country forbidding a workingman from coming here in search of employment. Employers have brought thousands of men from Europe for the purpose of breaking down wages, and some of these imported laborers are the cheapest men that can be found in the civilized world. Thousands more, among them skilled men, have come of their own accord.

A tax on goods can not affect the wages of men. The protectionists say that they build up industres with their statutes and create opportunities for employment. What with the cheap lands of the West and the diversity of opportunities for labor in this country. Nature has really done what the Protectionist thinks he does.

Besides, how ludicrous is the proposition that American labor can make employment for itself by taxing itself! Labor pays its share of the tariff taxes, and it ought to be intelligent enough to understand that it does not need opportunity for work so badly that it must tax itself on its clothes, its food and its, home, for the purpose of making its neighbor rich enough to give it a job.

If it is true that wages are higher in this country than in England, it is also true that they are higher in free trade England than in the protection countries of the Continent. They are also higher in some States of the Union than in others. The law that governs wages is the law of supply and demand, and the more labor produces the higher is its wages.

A committee of the Senate of the United States has just found that for a period of twenty-eight months, beginning before the passage of the McKinley Bill and ending 12 months after, wages in 15 industries, most of them unprotected, went up 75 of one per cent., while wages in 15 highly protected industries went down 84 of one per cent. The McKinley Act increased the rates of duty on furniture, but the wages of cabinet-makers went down; it reduced the rates of duty on most iron castings, but the wages of iron moulders went up.

Wages have gone up in this country, but in 50 years, from 1835 to 1836, wages in England made a greater advance.

but in 50 years, from 1835 to 1886, wages in England made a greater advance. They increased 100 per cent.

It is the invariable law of our civilization that wages are increasing, while the cost of living is decreasing. A tariff tax interferes with the operation of this law and checks the rise of wages and the reduction of the cost of living. In the 28 months alluded to, the McKinley law checked a fall in prices which in the previous 18 months amounted to 14 per cent, and added $285,000,000 to the cost of living.

PARK THEATRE.—Why Everybody who has seen it praises it. Abounding in beautiful stage pictures, bubbling over with wholesome fun and popular with the prettiest of chorus girls that's the "1492" now running at the Park Theatre. Incessant it is entertainment and manifold its attractions. Add to this the fact that it is new, that if you have not seen it you are not up to the times, and that everybody who has seen it, is advertising its excelence to his or her friends, and you will understand why it has for three weeks and more attracted crowds to the Park Theatre. Those sweet songs that you hear hummed in the cars and on the streets are from "1492" and that sweetest of all is "The Man in the Moon." The array of performers is so long that a tithe of them would make a very strong attraction. The expenses of maintaining such an aggregation must be enormous; for "1402" has most superb comedians, wonderful butterfly dancers, perfectly Grand Opera House.—The management have a surprise in afore for their patrons next week. Dr. William F. Carver, who has been travelling through Europe and Australia with his famous wild west show, has just returned to this country. Through the advice of Mr. Fred C. Whitney the show has been adapted to stage purposes and the wild west will on the boards of the Grand Opera House be given graphic portrayal. To accomplish this a drama has been written. The name given to it is "The Scout," and Dr. Carver has succeeded evolving a play which presents life as it actually is on the plains. "The Scout," it is said, fairly teems with special features. There are Indian battles between genuine Indians and cow boys, exhibitions of Dr. Carver's remarkable skill as a marksman, the building tepees, war dances and a great bridge sepne, in which a horse falls through the structure into a tank of water 30 feet below and swims ashore. All the Indians with the company are known to history. Miss Lena Ssilnger, a beautiful woman, takes the part of the Lily of the West. All of the chiracter roles have been entrusted to competent players. There is a comedy element which runs through the play which will surely amuse. Children will find the production highly instructive. Mattuees on the usual days.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.—Clever and captivating little Annie Lewis, who has won her way into the hearts of American play-goers by her charming personality and fascinating manner, appears as a star for the first time in this city at the Bowdoin Square Theatre next Monday in a new play called "A Nutmeg Match," written for her by William Haworth, author of "The Ensign." The scene is laid in Connecticut, the "nutmeg state," and the story deals with a love match there. Much that is good is promised in the new play. It is said to contain some splendidly drawn characters of New England life. Miss Lewis displays her capabilities to excellent advantage, besides receiving the support of a company of individual excellence. The principal charm of Miss Lewis' performance is the true womanliness which she imparts to her characterization and the consummate skill she exercises in the manipulation of her role.

COLUMBIA THEATRE.—"Settled Out of Court," William Gillette's latest adaptation from the French of "Pont Biquet," received its initial performance in Boston at the Columbia Theatre last Monday evening, and Charles Frohman's splendid company received a royal welcome on their first appearance this season. The audience completely filled the handsome theatre and society turned out en masse. The plot of the piece is not particularly strong; but it serves to amuse. There is a "woman in the case," although she is talked about simply, not seen, and a romantic wife who finds letter writing dangerous. A just-to-be-married young man is driven to distraction and nearly to ruin by the ill-timed persistence of an "old flame," and his future mother-inlaw gets herself into equally hot water in her efforts to save him. With all these elements and more the fun might be expected to be fast and furious, and it is. The play never rises above pure farce, but it is a cleverly constructed trifle. "Settled Out of Court" will be continued without date.

Hollis Street Theatre.—"Miss Helyett," the much discussed, will be seen again next week at the Hollis Street. Theatre. The extraordinary diversity of entertainment combined in this merry comedy with music, has contributed to its extraordinary success all over Europe and in this country. The mercurial Gaul, the phlegmatic German, the frigid Muscovite, the stolid Briton and the alert, vivacious American, have alike keenly appreciated the droil and piquant story of little Miss Helyett's adventure in the Spanish Pyrenees, told to the tuneful and sparkling accompaniment of Audran's gay melodies. In "Miss Helyett," the cast is a large and efficient one—the same seen for 15 nights in New York, a month in Boston and 10 weeks in Chicago. "Miss Helyett" was an enormous hit when given at the Hollis last spring. Those who saw it will want to see it again, and those who did not see it cannot afford to miss it now. The revival is limited to a week only.

Mrs. Erving Winslow.

Lovers of the drama may expect a rare treat in a proposed course of lectures on the early English Dramatists, to be given by Mrs. Erving Winslow under the auspices of the New England Woman's Press Association. The lectures will be given at Pierce Hall, Copley Square, and are in effect similar to those delivered by Mrs. Winslow with such brilliant success last season, before the University of Pennsylvania. The first of the lectures from "Miracle to Masque," includes illustrative readings from the Chester Play of the History of Abraham and Isaac and from the writings of John Heywood, Still, Sackville and Ben Jonson. The course includes eight lectures, the first of which will be given Oct. 31s, at 11 o'clock.

The first week in October work of construction will be commenced on the route between Watertown and Waltham, and rapidly pushed to an early completion. All the materials have been purchased and are now on the way to both places named, so that there will be no delay on this account. Sewer Laborers' Strike.

The sewer laborers at West Newton and Newton Centre went out on a strike Tuesday morning.

Some of the men have been in a state of discontent for the past few days, not having received their pay. With the ex-ception of the Italians, the men are paid having received their pay. With the exception of the Italians, the men are paid off every two weeks. The Italians were paid monthly, and were paid off about ten days ago. Why they quit work is a mystery, unless they are giving expression to their sympathy for the grievances of the colored and Irish workmen who struck because the regular pay day had passed by without materialization of the where-with-all for which they had been anxiously awaiting.

One may gather an idea, however, of the position of the Italians in the matter from a remark made by one of their number to a reporter, in which he said:

"No money for Irishmen, no money for Italians; no pay, no work."

The total number of men who went out on strike is about 50, representing the laborers employed on two sections of the local sewers.

The contractor, Capt. Aaron Hall, has abandoned the contract and has notified the city authorities that he is financially unable to complete it, and the city will finish the work. Capt. Hall's losses are due, it is said, to quicksands and other unforesseen obstacles, and they amount to over $20,000.

THE NEWTON TRANSCRIPT HAS BEEN CONSOLIDATED WITH THE GRAP

THE LANGFORD PLAN.

No one can say that the people are not interested in the proposed plan of re-moving the tracks, as City Hall was not large enough to hold those who favored the scheme. At least as the call was for those to attend who favored it, it can be assumed that all present looked on the

In the matter and some of them were very enthusiastic over the benefits to be derived from the moving of the tracks, and the building of a grand boulevard where the railroad now runs. Even looking at the matter in the coolest way it can not be denied that the carry-ing out of the project would have a bene-ficial influence on the growth of Newton, and would make amends in great measure for the very narrow policy that has been followed in the laying out of our streets. All the benefits that would follow from laying out Washington street with the tracks as at present, would be doubled by having the tracks moved and having two sides to the street.

It is to be hoped that now the question will be studied practically, to see if it is in any way feasible. Theoretically the people seem to be satisfied that it would be an excellent thing, and now it will be well to find out whether the difficulties are insurmountable, what they are, and what the plan would cost, in comparison with the plan that the board of aldermen have so far favored.

THE CHOLERA SCARE.

THE presence of cholera has aroused the people all over the land to look after the sanitary arrangements for the public. While no one feels kindly toward any progress this dread disease may make, still the good results of thorough sanitary precautions which are now in progress in all parts of our country, are very gratifying and stimulating to the best interests of the community. It has inaugurated a great national house cleaning. ing which could be accomplished only under the stimulus of an impending na-tional danger. It may result in modifi-cations and restrictive provisions in our immigration laws which will stop the coming to our shores of so many breed-ers of disease pestilence and lawlessness. One of the more recent developments in this vicinity is in favor of the establishment of a garbage crematory in vari ous cities. Cambridge people are wide awake and have petitioned their city government to establish such a crematory for the disposal of rags, mattresses, bedding and such like articles as find their way to the city dump. The Newton Board of Health are alive to the necessities of complete sanitation and are urging connections with the sewers as fast as possible, especially in all sections where the soil has become contaminated by old cesspools. It be hooves every citizen to look after hi own premises and to keep the sanitary arrangements in complete order.

DISFIGURATION OF HIGHWAYS.

While so much attention is being called attractiveness of the scenery instead of award willages of our commonwealth, there is one tolerated common distiguration that does much to mar the appearance of the best kept highways. We refer to the posting of bills and notices on the trees and telegraph posts. It should not be allowed. There should be notice boards erected at convenient places for the reception of all such things, and every care should be taken to keep the trees especially clean of them. Sometimes the public officials are the chief offenders in this respect for it is very common to find some of the finest trees along the highways marred by Dog Tax Notices, and such like information issued by authority of the local government. by authority of the local government

The bill poster argues that if the authorities are so ready to commit this offense he can hardly be blamed for putting up his concert bill, and then comes the host of patent medicine people to add to the disfiguration.

Every local improvement society should regard it as one of its first duties to abate this bill posting nuisance by securing the erection of the notice boards

Bad Odors from the Charles River.

While some parts of this stream are exceedingly picturesque, and while the whole river as it flows towards its outlet may be made so, we are suffering just now from some very bad odors which favoring winds, hot suns, mud floats and the accumulation of drainage matter

One of the things to be done is to stop the discharge of offensive matter into the river. This of course can be secured by using the sewers. A correspondent in a Boston paper suggests also that a partial remedy can be found by puting a low dam across the river at some point near one of the railroad bridges so as to keep the flats covered with water. There seem to be some difficulties in the way of doing this, but they ought not to be insuperable.

The beauty and the usefulness of the river from Watertown downwards can be greatly improved, and the time must come when with the banks stoned up and the channel dredged, the Charles will be "a thing of beauty" which it is not now at low tide. A stream of this size flowing along so much good territory ought to be made to contribute to the attractiveness of the scenery instead of being, as it is now, a nuisance.

All of this without regard to sanitary One of the things to be done is to stop curing the erection of the notice boards in proper places.

Last week we published the official program for Columbus Day, as outlined

Mr. Williams' Financial Unsoundness

To the Editor of the GRAPHIC:

It is claimed by the Boston Herald that sound money men, of whatever party, should stand by Mr. George Fred Williams, because he fought the free silver coinage men of his own party. I am not disposed to detract from any credit due him for that act, but I wish to inquire why it is not better to depend upon majorities than upon minorities for sound money legislation. Mr. Williams did all he could to elect the Democratic majority which has so menaced the stability of the currency, and on account of his free trade principles he favored a free coinage candidate for Speaker. I refer to Mr. Mills, and though unable to nominate him, he was not then nonpartisan enough to oppose Mr. Crisp another free coinage man, and vote fo Thomas B. Reed who, and a majority of So, the claim that Mr. Williams rose above his party is not half true. Every-body knows that if Mr. Reed had been re-elected Speaker he would have appointed a committee on coinage which would never have reported a free coinage bill. Mr. Williams was too much of a partisan to serve the great majority of his constituents at that most crucial moment, and his subsequent kick against the majority of his party came too late to spare the country an agitation which for months hung like a gathering storm over the business and honor of the country.

Now if he is re-elected to Congress, he will be certain to again support a free coinage Democrat for Speaker. But if Gen. Draper is elected, he will be cer tain to support the Republican candidate, who will beyond question be a sound money man, and who if elected will have money man, and who if elected will have a sound money majority to work with, instead of a majority which, as in the present House, will vote every time for debasing the currency.

Coinage, however, is not all there is of the currency question. The Democratic party has declared in favor of a state bank circulation, and Mr. Williams indorses this most dangerous proposition. Here, again, his zeal for Democratic parter. tion. Here, again, his zeal for Demo-cratic success runs away with the sound-ness and independence for which many of us have given him credit. I know he says and his fellow partisans in Massachu-setts say, that this does not mean a re-turn to the old wild cat money that circulated before the war, but it will not do to trust to this assumption. State banks will be organized under a great variety of state laws, and wherever the unsound money majorities exist to-day, there will then be red-dog and stump-tail currency. I assume that Mr. Wil-liams is too good a lawyer to pretend that Congress can regulate and make safe the issues of banks organized under state laws. It is a dear principle of Democracy that there shall be no federal interference in state affairs.

I confess to some astonishment that Mr. Williams, whose only claim to Republican support is based upon his opposition to the majority of his party on the comage of silver, should forfeit that upport and also that of every sound support and also that of every sound money Democrat, by supporting the far more dangerous scheme to pour forth a flood of variegated and insecure notes. Before this colossal danger, the tariff question and all the other issues shrink into unimportance, at least so far as the nnto unimportance, at least so far as the possibility of any practical legislation is concerned, hence the only safe thing to do is to support the opposing candidate, Gen. Draper, and that is what a good many Williams men of two years ago, with whom I have conversed, say they are going to do.

I am thankful that true independence still lives. It does not exist for office or still lives. It does not exist for office or for the success or defeat of any individu-al or a party. It exists to discern and stand for the right, and it has neither prejudice, nor enmity, nor partisanship in wielding it.

The above hymn was written by one of Boston's oldest and most respected of Boston's oldest and most respected school masters, Granville B. Putnam, a resident of West Newton. Music written by the well-known organist and composer, J. E. Trowbridge, also of Newton, The hymn is nublished by Oliver Ditson Co., in two separate editions, viz., "National Hymn Edition," "School Celebration Edition." The National Columbian public school celebration executive committee have endorsed and recommended it for general use, as will be seen from their supplementary circular, in which they say: "Frequent requests have been received asking the committee to name special songs and exercises which may be added to the official program. Among many excellent songs written for the occasion, "Columbia's Jubilee" is one of the noblest; the words are by Granville B. Putnam, the music is by J. E. Trowbridge, and the song is published by Oliver Ditson of Boston."

The public spirited citizens of Newton should certainly not be behind other cities and towns in observing the great celebration. One way to do this, besides the gatherings in the different school houses, suggested by the executive commitree, would be, to have one or two large gatherings in principal halls, with addresses by good speakers, and music by large choruses, composed of the older scholars, singing all the well-known patriotic selections and the new hymn, "Columbia's Jubilee." An orchestra or military band would add to the interest of such an occasion. Cannot this be done?

Fruit Culture.

Mr. W. C. Strong of Waban has just published a second and revised edition of his book "Fruit Culture and the layor ins book "Interesting and the laying out and management of a Country Home," which has numerous additions, and is the best work on fruit culture to be had for the latitude. The Boston Advertiser says of it: "Mr. Strong gives evidence of that thorough grasp of the subject which he has gained from thirty years' experience as an orohardist. His book is a simple, clear, well condensed manual of practical information on the fundamental principles involved in the successful cultivation of each species of fruits. The happy suggestions on the laying out and management of a country home, the special attention given to the habits of the insects injurious to fruits, and the numerous woodcuts illustrating the salient features of the text are more than sufficient to recommend this little guide to all interested in horticulture or in fruit-tree culture."

The press notices are very favorable, and that of the Philadelphia Ledgre ing out and management of a Country guide to all interested in horticulture or in fruit-tree culture."

The press notices are very favorable, and that of the Philadelphia Ledger gives an admirable summary of the book. It says "A most inspiring little book, and one that fairly makes the mouth water, the subjects treated are so suggestive of flavor and fineness. Country readers or even those owning small plats in town will be possessed, after reading Mr. Strong's chapters, with a desire to turn horticulturist or orchardist as possible. Small fruits are not neglected amid the details of planting and training peaches, cherries, plums, grapes, quinces, apples, pears, etc., in chapters that glow with color. Practical rules and shrewd observations are condensed within the pages."

The book is published by the Rural Publishing Company of New York, and copies can be had by sending $1 to Mr. Strong at Waban.

The second prize in doubles rests between the Somervilles and the Waban Racquet Club, with the advantage with the latter club, which has won eight matches, lost six, and has one postponed game with the Walthams.

The prizes are handsome silver pieces, and were exhibited at the Inter-club tennis dance, given by the Wellesley Hills Club Sept. 27, at Wellesley Hills.

ON WATLINGS ISLAND

DISCOVERY OF THE SPOT WHERE COLUMBUS LANDED.

Walter Weilman Tells How He Explored the Bahamas and Settled the Contro-versy Concerning the First Land Sighted by Columbus-A Fascinating and Instructive Narrative.

[Copyright, 1892.] In May, 1891, the editor of the Chicago Herald wired me at Washington, "Can you find the spot where Columbus discovered America and mark it with a memorial?" My reply was, "Will try." If it had been a request to find the north pole or capture a mer-maid I suppose the answer would have been the same. The newspaper correspondent is not surprised at anything.

WALTER WELLMAN.

The plan of The Herald was easy to understand. For centuries the iden tity of the island which Columbus first landed upon had remained unknown The quadricentennial of the discover ebrated in Chicago with a great exposition, and The Herald thought it proper that the spot at which occurred the most tremendous event in history should be sought out and appropriately marked.

This was a queer task, but a fascinating one. I went at it in characteristic American fashion—that is, jumped at it. I ransacked the Congressional library and other libraries. I cabled to London for a book which was not to be found in America. I procured from the hydro-graphic office charts of the Bahamas graphic office charts of the Bahamas made by our government and the British admiralty.

Night and day study of the mystery of the discovery quickly showed these facts: In all history there is nothing that throws light upon the landfall save the journal kept by Columbus himself. Five islands had been put forward as the real San Salvador, and hundreds of techs and appropriate printing improvements. books and pamphlets written in support of these theories. The correct theory must be based upon two conditions: The island itself must have certain features issand itself must have certain features described by Columbus—lagoon, reefs, harbor hard by a headland through which the sea had cut its way, etc.— and it must lie at certain distances and in certain directions from five other islands visited and described by Columbus. As to the latter condition Columbus. As to the latter condition, inspection of the charts showed Watlings to be the only one that would fit the geometrical lines of Columbus' first voyage through the Bahamas. If it contained the physical features which Columbus had found in his San Salvador, then the mystery was solved.

Columbus had found in his San Salvador, then the mystery was solved. Oddly enough, the learned historians, geographers and cartographers who had supported the claims of the rival islands had not taken the trouble to visit the region of which they discoursed. Had they done so their controversy might have come to an end long ago.

Early in June our expedition sailed from New York. We went by Ward line steamer Santiago to Nassau, the capital of the Bahamas, having on board in addition to Charles Lederer, the famous artist of the Chicago Herald, a stonemason, a marble globe, a memorial tablet, thirty barrels of cement, a man servant, a photographic outfit and man servant, a photographic outfit and sundry boxes, barrels, demijohns and bottles containing the necessaries of life. At Nassau we had a narrow escape. The governor of the Bahamas was to leave for England within an hour or so after our arrival, and without his au-thority we could do nothing. An hour of husting, the assistance of the Ameri-can consul and a letter which I had brought from Sir Julian Pauncefote, British minister at Washington, and ended on Aug. 30, but several postponed games had not been played, and there are yet three or four matches to come off, which will materially affect the standing of the clubs, especially in singles.

manding all the local officials of the pahamas to place themselves at our command. Lucky for us that we caught kindly Governor Shea. The lieutenant governor, who came into power the minute the governor sailed, was against us. "Impertinent, presumptuous Yankees!" "Impertinent, presumptuous Yankees!" he exclaimed; "to think they can come down here and in a few weeks set-down here and in a few weeks set-tle one of the great mysteries of history!"

If the lieutenant governor had had his way we should have been sent back to New York quicker.
Watlings was 200 miles away. We had decided that if a visit to Watlings produced the physical exidence news. had decided that if a visit to Watlings produced the physical evidence necessary to establish its claims beyond doubt, well and good. If not, we were to study the other islands in the order of their theoretical probability. How to get to Watlings was the question. In the harbor were sloops, yachts and schooners galore. One smelled of her last cargo Langiag rum; another of sponges. ers gaiore. One smelled of her last cargo, Jamaica rum; another of sponges, a third of fish, a fourth of poultry. The cabins of all were mere cells. And it was the season of the year when calms reigned for days at a time. The only steam vessel in port was the steamship tender, a crude craft with a bottom as flat as a street car, keelless and not fat as a street car, keelless and not lovely. Besides she costa pretty penny. But we bothered the expense and took her, hove into her our cement and supplies, employed some more masons with their tools, bought half a ton of precious ice, hired "Sandy," the most famous pilot of the Bahamas; borrowed as American flag of the consul, and with the stars and stripes flying at masthead

American flag of the consul, and with the stars and stripes flying at masthead steamed away.

A day and a night of alternating calmand storm, through rocky passages and over dangerous shoals, and we were at Cat island, which Washington Irving made famous and our old geographies solemnly confirmed as the San Salvador of Columbus. For half a day we steamed along the coast of Cat island, and I examined it very carefully. It bears not resemblance whatever to the island which Columbus described in his jour nal. For fifty years it has been a San Salvador under false pretenses.

In the afternoon we reached Watlings. Palm trees and hazy vistas, thatched huts and outlying reefs over which the surf broke lazily marked its shores. A boat at once put off to us. It contained all the officials of the island—the local magistrate, the port officer, the post-master the sheriff the oclone of the all the officials of the island—the local magistrate, the port officer, the post-master, the sheriff, the colonel of the militia and many more—all in the person of Captain Maxwell Nairn, the only white resident of the island, a veritable Pooh Bah, monarch of a coral isle. His salary is $200 a year, and he has been there thirty years.

Captain Nairn became our guide, counselor, friend and foeman. With him we explored the island. A coral rock it is, a dozen miles long and half as broad, containing large lagoons of brackish water, covered with tropical vegetation, nearly surrounded by reefs.

brackish water, covered with tropical vegetation, nearly surrounded by reefs. Eight hundred negroes live here, tilling altogether probably a score of acres of land, subsisting principally on fish and other sea food. They are an honest, pious, temperate people. Their chief failing is a predisposition toward piracy, and woe to the cargo of the ship that is wrecked upon their shores. This piratical tendency they came naturally by, for this coral island was once the rendezvous of infamous Blue Beard, and some of these poor people are no doubt his direct descendants. direct descendants.

But I could see little in this island But I could see little in this island save Christopher Columbus. At every turn the great discoverer was suggested. The salt lagoon appeared to echo back his name: the sands of the shore seemed to bear the impress of his feet; the surf breaking over the reefs chanted the "Te Deum" in imitation of Columbus himself.

breaking over the reefs chanted the "To Deum" in imitation of Columbus himself. The spirit of Columbus dominates everything in Watlings, overshadows everything, leaves nothing else to be thought of or written about.

And no wonder. Here was everything that Columbus described in his journal—the "large lagoon in the middle of the island," the luxuriant verdure, the "reefs running all round that island," the hills near the shore, the "piece of land like an island, yet which is not an island, but could easily be made one," as an admirable sight for a fort; the harbor lying hard by, in which "all the ships of Christendom could lie." All these and many more of the things which Columbus had described we found, and at first knew instinctively, and later proved to a mathematical certainty, that this was the birthplace of the New World.

A little bay, two miles from the "piece of land like an island," I chose after

A little bay, two miles from the "piece of land like an island," I chose after of land like an island." I chose after much exploration as the very spot at which the landing was made. That this island was the San Salvador of Columbus I know: that this pretty bay, with its overhanging headland and shining beach, was the more particular scene of the discovery I believe. In the nature of things it cannot be proved, though there is much in its favor. Near it is a high hill which Columbus probably first saw in the moonlight of that fateful morning. It is the first bit of coast to the south, free enough from reefs to permit safe landing. It is at a point whence Cosouth, free enough from reefs to permit safe landing. It is at a point whence Co-lumbus would have rowed "north north-easterly to see the other side of the island," as he says he did the second morning after his arrival, on this occa-sion discovering the "piece of land like an island" and the wonderful harbor "in which the water is still as in a well."

which the water is still as in a well."
On the promontory which lifted its head above the little bay we erected a memorial. It was constructed of coral limestone found hard by. Thirty native workmen were employed cutting roads with their machetes, bringing forward materials, mixing mortand case. roads with their machetes, bringing forward materials, mixing mortar and carrying cement up the hillside. Skillful boatmen brought supplies from the steamer through the dangerous coral reef. The American flag floated from a staff as we worked, and the monument grew day by day. The sun beat with tropical fierceness; our drinking water was dipped out of the hollows of the rocks, warm and brackish. But no one fell ill, and finally the work was finished. It had been well done. Plenty of cement bound the stones firmly together. The result was beautiful. In the coral limestone are all the tints of the rainbow. stone are all the tints of the rainbow

There are ways and ways of making money, and in some of them even the heathen Chinee is not in it with the fulloded Yankee. One of the ways bar just failed of success, and many of the worthy citizens of the Brighton district and the Newtons are congratulating themselves over the failure. Events during the last few years indi-are introduced, and when the next dividend day comes along the new board fails to declare a dividend. The earnings may have been reduced by intentional neglect of business, or may be carried to the surplus account.

The immediate effect is that the stock-holders outside the syndicate lose faith in the bank. With no dividends the stock soon goes down in price, and, fearing a total collapse, the outsiders sell their stock at a greatly depressed figure, and it is gathered in by the combine. This accomplished, the bank is properly haudled, good dividends are declared, and up goes the stock, to the substantial profit of the new owners.

Several New England banks have had this experience quite recently, at the hands of the same syndicate. One of the latest was a bank in a shoe town in this state that was paying S per cent., and its stock was selling well above par. The syndicate bought a bare majority of the stock, put their usual tactics in operation, and very soon the stock was down to about half par. The outsiders were relieved of their holdings at this figure, and soon again the bank was paying S per cent., the stock was high and the management was happy.

The Brighton Market National Bank was recently selected by the syndicate as a candidate for its "freeze out" process, and shares and options for a considerable portion of the stock were secured. There were two quite large blocks of stock soon to come on the market, and the operators were sure of securing them, which would give them a majority of the bank secured the two blocks in the market, and the bank was saved.

The operators have been paying 1.10, or 10 for options, and have secured several hundred shares. They have probably not really lost anything, but the interest of their money, but their prospective profits have vanished, and the operators have been paying 1.10.

This is a scheme which is apt to be tried again, and holders of bank stock should be on their guard against such operations. Strangers who approach shareholders with fores in advance of marke

SOME GORGEOUS FLOATS.

To Be Seen at the Dedication Ceremonies in October.

In October.

With many of the details for the dedication of the World's fair buildings at Chicago the general public is familiar, but of the spectacular side of the celebration little has been written of late, although preparations have been going on for nearly a year. This display, which is termed the "Procession of the Centuries," is to include more than forty floats, and will pass in brilliant pageant through the lakes and canals and lagoons of Jackson park. This will be repeated every night and the illuminations will be magnificent. Important events in the

of Jackson park. This will be repeated every night and the illuminations will be magnificent. Important events in the life of Columbus and in the history of America will be represented. Many symbolical floats will also be introduced. Designs for four of these floats are particularly worthy of notice. They will cost thousands of dollars, and are calculated to eclipse anything heretofore seen in this sort of pageantry.

The first is a tableau of Columbus before the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. The monarchs sit on their gilded throne under the rich canopy, both attired as becomes the rulers of Leon and Castile. Before them stands Columbus eagerly and earnestly trying to convince them of the truth of his theories. His charts are spread before him on a table. The explorer is dressed in black velvet, with a long gown, which he throws aside in his eagerness. The queen listens intently, the conviction of his truth growing upon her. The king, however, is almost indifferent.

upon her. The king, however, is almost indifferent.

Their Catholic zeal and faith is shown by a large cross behind them. Near Columbus stand several courtiers and some of the wise men. The latter have their own maps with them and cannot suppress a scornful sneer at the presumptuous adventurer, whose mind they suggest is disordered.

The next float is more typically American. "Westward the course of empire takes its way" is the subject. The prominent feature is the prairie schooner drawn by oxen, which is just emerging from a cleft in the rocks. A scout on horseback leads the way, and ahead of him Indians are skulking off behind the rocks and trees. Another Indian peers over a ridge of rock at the advance of civilization.

In the foreground surveyors are working one.

In the foreground surveyors are working on a line of railway. A little shanty under the cliff is their camp.

TYPIFYING PEACE AND PLENTY.
The two floats "War" and "Peace" will probably be the only suggestion of the civil conflict. The first float will be a dismantled ship, with masts and spars shattered and sails torn in shreds. On the battlefield are cannon, a few dead soldiers and a dead horse. Over it hang the demons of war. The coloring of this float will all be somber. Black will predominate. Lurid red light will be thrown on the war demons hovering over the battlefield.
"Peace" will be in strong contrast to TYPIFYING PEACE AND PLENTY.

over the battlefield.

"Peace" will be in strong contrast to the last one. Every color will be bright. The horn of plenty will be prominent, pouring forth treasures, and angels of peace will hover over the land. The dismounted cannon will be wreathed with flowers, its muzzle filled with roses children will play over it and one roses, children will play over it, and one darling little one will sit astride the breech, spiking it forever. Herewith are given illustrations showing the general scope of two of these interesting designs.

The School Review.

The School Review.

One of the most striking suggestions for the local observances of Columbus Day is that in every town and city in the land the schools parade after the morning exercises of the celebration. While this is not specifically included in the official programme prepared for the day, it is strongly urged by the committee of educators who have had the uniform celebration in charge.

If there is a general parade of the civic and military organizations a "public school review" should be its most honored feature. If there is no general procession the schools alone might be reviewed. Let the pupils meet at their school houses at a designated hour and be conducted by efficient marshals, without delays and in perfect order, to their places in the line. The army veterans north and south, the blue and the gray alike, are properly to march with the schools as special guards of honor. As the reviewing stand is reached each part of the column can salute the flag with cheers and waving of handkerchiefs and caps.

The various patriotic organizations might fittingly be invited both to the morning exercises and to serve, in addition to the veterans, as escorts in the review. The beauty of the review would be heightened if each school carried both the national flag and a distinctive banner of its own. The review also might be made impressive by symbolic floats; models of the "old red school house" and of the ship of Columbus are among the appropriate subjects. This feature, however, should not be attempted unless it can be effectively done. In all cases, let it be said, the fantastic should be rigorously barred from the procession.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous, I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and ray hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.
